Grim Situation in Mideast

Threat of Resumed Fighting Looms Again

By United Press International
Tel Aviv and Cairo spoke of more war today, adding fuel to already hardening Israeli and Egyptian diplomatic positions on settling the 1973 conflict. But there was growing cooperation among their soldiers on the cease-fire lines.

Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir met with President Nixon for 80 minutes Thursday and later said she would not pull her forces back to the Oct. 22 cease-fire lines — the price Egypt is asking for release of Israeli war prisoners.

In Tel Aviv today, the newspaper of Mrs. Meir's ruling Labor party warned that her Washington talks did not mean an end to the war. And in Cairo, a newspaper editor with close government connections said war is more likely than peace.

"Despite Mrs. Meir's talks in Washington," said the Tel Aviv Labor newspaper Davar, "we should not ignore the fact that the war has not yet ended or assume that matters have finally and irrevocably reverted to the political sphere."

Mrs. Meir told newsmen in Washington a new cease-fire line should be negotiated by Israel and Egypt to straighten out untenable positions. "Israel feels there will have to be a redistribution of forces on each side," Mrs. Meir said.

In Cairo, an influential newspaper editor and close confidant of President Anwar Sadat said "a return to the battlefield to continue the war is more likely than our going to a peace conference."

"Peace is still far, far away," Mohammed Hassanein

Heikal wrote in the semi-official newspaper Al-Ahram. "Even the beginning of the road to peace is still far."

Nixon, who met the day before with Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy, said Thursday his discussion with Mrs. Meir was constructive "as were the talks yesterday."

The President's remarks created speculation that Mrs. Meir and Fahmy might meet secretly to resolve their differences, but there was no official word on such a session. UPI reporter Thomas Ackerman, reporting from the cease-fire lines in Egypt, said Thursday soldiers from the two sides have begun to mingle and chat despite occasional clashes.

Israel reported turning back an attempt by 150 Egyptian troops earlier in the day to break out of encircled positions on the east bank of the Suez Canal. A spokesman said the clash was brief and there were no reported casualties.

An Israeli colonel told Ackerman, "the companionship between the Israelis and the Egyptians is unbelievable. They exchange ideas, they speak with each other, they listen to the radio together and some of the Egyptian officers speak Hebrew."

A young Israeli infantryman told Ackerman the opposing troops "compare our dogtag inscriptions and the officers' ranks. Anything to pass the time of day."

Mrs. Meir told reporters Israel was sticking by its refusal to withdraw to the Oct. 22 truce lines because "we cannot withdraw to a line when even a spokesman for the United Nations in Cairo said the other day he doesn't know where it is."

Diplomatic sources in Washington, however, interpreted her proposal of a new truce line as a veiled offer to relieve Israeli pressure on the encircled 20,000-man Egyptian 3rd Army—a move that might prompt Egypt to release Israeli prisoners.

Mrs. Meir said the POW release was her top priority. "This is something Israel cannot live with," she said.

NIXON, MRS. MEIR DISCUSS THE MIDEAST
(UPI, TELEPHOTO)

Haldeman to Be Called In Missing Tapes Case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Watergate prosecutors said today the White House had not proved that two of President Nixon's secret tapes never existed and they would conduct a complete examination to find out what happened.

Richard Ben-Veniste, a lawyer for the Watergate special prosecution force, said at the opening of a third day of hearings on the tapes that the American people "expect and are entitled" to an explanation.

In order to answer questions about the missing tapes, the prosecution said it will call former White House Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman, former Haldeman aide Larry Higby, a assistant Attorney General Henry E. Petersen, and Federal Aviation Administrator Alexander P. Butterfield, the man who revealed July 16 existence of the President's secret tapes.

White House lawyer J. Fred Buzhardt, who presented two Secret Service agents and a White House historian Thursday to describe why the tapes did not exist, asked the court to recess until Monday to allow him time to prepare his case.

But Chief U. S. District Judge John J. Sirica said he could "see no reason why" the hearing could not continue today.

The tapes in question were of a late night conversation between Nixon and former White House counsel John W. Dean III on April 15, 1973.

shortly before Dean was fired, and a four-minute telephone conversation in 1972 between Nixon and his former campaign chief, John N. Mitchell.

Ben-Veniste said there was "no proof" that the Nixon-Mitchell conversation took place on an unbugged telephone as the White House claims and "no testimony under oath" when it was discovered the two tapes did not exist.

"We believe that a complete inquiry to solicit all of the facts about the missing tapes," Ben-Veniste said, "The grand jury expects and is entitled to this and we believe the American people represented by the grand jury are entitled to a complete professional explanation of this matter."

He said he might put Buzhardt on the stand since the White House has acknowledged that Buzhardt listened to at least one of the tapes — for March 20 of this year — on Nixon's request.

Buzhardt said the Nixon-Dean conversation, held in the President's Executive Office Building office, was not recorded on the White House taping system because of an equipment malfunction which caused the tape to run out.

He said the telephone discussion between Nixon and Mitchell on June 20, 1972, three days after the Watergate break-in, was not available because the phone used by Nixon was in his residential quarters and not connected to the taping system.

Buzhardt put three witnesses on the stand Thursday: —Raymond C. Zumwalt, a Secret Service agent assigned as one of the tape custodians, said he had no knowledge of whether former White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman took home the April 15 tape.

—James G. Baker, Zumwalt's assistant, testified that he had run out before the Dean removed from the recorder the April 15 tape reel which the whether the offer was accepted.

White House said did not record the Nixon-Dean conversation because it was already full. He said he had no "specific recollection" the tape had completely run out.

—John C. Nesbitt, chief of the White House historical unit for the National Archives, said "conflicting reports" of times that visitors entered Nixon's office on April 15 had prompted a rare "revision" in the official "daily diary" of Nixon's activities.

The White House offered to let Sirica hear the April 15 tape and judge for himself that it had run out before the Dean removed from the recorder the April 15 tape reel which the whether the offer was accepted.

Sudden Nixon Departure

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — President Nixon, showing signs of tension from the continuing Watergate crisis, left his aides behind and abruptly flew here Thursday for a weekend at his vacation home.

Only Bryce N. Harlow, the veteran White House advisor who was recently recalled from private life to help Nixon out of the Watergate scandal, accompanied him.

His chief of staff, Alexander M. Haig Jr., and press secretary, Ronald L. Ziegler, caught a later flight Thursday night. Mrs. Nixon and other members of the First Family remained in Washington.

Nixon's press office, which normally notifies newsmen in time for them to accompany the President on such trips, did not spread the word until after Nixon's departure.

This was seen by some observers as another indication of his growing irritation with the press. He severely chastised newsmen — particularly television commentators — at his news conference last week for "vicious, distorted" reporting on the Watergate affair.

Harlow is one of Nixon's chief advisors on congressional relations and the President was expected to spend some time with him discussing ways of restoring confidence in his leadership among members of Congress.

This confidence was further eroded with the disclosure that two of the nine recordings of presidential conversations on the Watergate affair which Nixon has been ordered to turn over to the federal courts do not exist.

plained that the conversations were not recorded because of a mechanical failure in one instance and the use of a telephone not hooked into the White House recording system in the other.

But even the President's supporters on Capitol Hill see this as a severe blow to his credibility.

Presidential spokesman Gerald L. Warren said the President arrived at his bay-side compound at 4:57 p.m. after a two-hour flight from Washington and was greeted by his friend, C.G. (Bebe) Rebozo, whose home is adjacent to the President's and inside the presidential compound.

Although the President has stoutly defended his honesty, after a finance chairman was appointed — has not satisfied presidential government investigators who are still looking into the matter.

he had accepted $100,000 in campaign contributions from billionaire Howard Hughes, kept it locked in a safe deposit box for more than two years and returned it earlier this year.

At his news conference, Nixon explained that Rebozo had held the money until a finance chairman had been appointed for his campaign and then decided to return the funds because an internal squabble among Hughes' corporate executives made it a potential embarrassment.

But the explanation—which failed to answer such questions as why Rebozo continued holding the funds for a year after a finance chairman was appointed — has not satisfied presidential government investigators who are still looking into the matter.

City's 'Priority Items' Detailed by GOP's Merrill

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON
Republican mayoral candidate William B. Merrill Jr., in his "last press conference" before Tuesday's elections, detailed what he termed "priority items facing the city of Kingston," to wit: taxes, crime, burglaries and vandalism and corruption in city government.

Merrill also called for the abolition of the post of city judge and its replacement with two to four justices of the peace. Merrill contended that the city's judicial department is now costing "about $30,000 a year" and that a justice of the peace system would not only be less expensive but more efficient. "Ninety per cent of the cases that are heard in city court could be handled by justices of the peace," Merrill said. "The other cases of more serious nature are routinely referred to higher court."

City administration rapped over Landmarks. Story on Page 18.

On the subject of taxes, Merrill again called for the equalization of the city sales tax with surrounding areas and for consolidation and streamlining of city government. "Immediately, if elected, I will contact the county officials to determine if a level sales tax could be had throughout the county of Ulster with a retention clause to the city of Kingston so that with the increase of business in the city it will offset the reduction of lowering the sales tax in the city," Merrill said.

Although Merrill labeled crime in the city as "the second most important issue," he leveled his strongest attacks at the Koenig administration in that area. Merrill contended that the police department was understaffed and that the city was not devoting enough of its tax dollars to that area. He noted that overall spending during the four years of the Koenig administration has increased by 29 per cent but that spending in the police department has increased by only 14 per cent.

Speaking of alleged malfeasance in the city treasurer's office, Merrill said, "the general public is well aware of the horrendous treasury department scandal which affected the city of Kingston. This case is not closed. There are still monies missing and I intend to find out just where this money went and to prosecute to the full extent of the law the wrongdoers in the treasurer's office."

Merrill held Mayor Francis R. Koenig "responsible for the alleged wrong-doings in the treasurer's office. "He's the man in charge. He's responsible. Never once have I seen Koenig accept the responsibility."

Merrill also addressed himself to the subject of city employee unions endorsing Mayor Koenig and Alderman-at-Large T. Robert Gallo for reelection. "Unions representing the paid firemen, workers in the Public Works and water department employees have endorsed Koenig and Gallo. Terming those endorsements 'absurd,' Merrill said, "I do not believe any city union should come out in favor of anyone. At one time or another this year all those unions have been in contract negotiations with the same people they are endorsing." Merrill said he was not opposed to individual city workers endorsing political candidates, but said that if he were offered the endorsement of a union representing city employees, "I would reject it."

Koenig Lauds Uptown UR

KINGSTON
Mayor Francis R. Koenig, emphasizing his administration's record in urban renewal and redevelopment, today cited major street improvements in the Uptown Project nearing completion in the Washington Hurley Avenue area.

The $706,116 contract was awarded in March of this year to James Berardi Construction Co. of Kingston and included the widening of both Hurley Avenue from the A&P Supermarket to its junction with Washington Avenue and Washington Avenue from Lucas Avenue to the Penn Central Railroad tracks, installation of storm and sanitary sewers, water lines and underground utility lines, construction of sidewalks, installation of new street lights and signalization and landscaping. The work also included the elimination of one of the city's worst traffic bottlenecks at the junction of North Front Street and Washington Avenue.

"When completed," Koenig said, "this project is expected to considerably improve traffic flow in the Uptown area of Kingston." Urban renewal officials say the work will be completed within the next three weeks.

"The street improvements program represents a major visible portion of the city's commitment toward revitalizing the appearance of the area and further demonstrates the administration's support for providing an attractive atmosphere for business activity in the area," Koenig said.

"Since 1970, the city's renewal program has functioned as a vehicle in providing a substantial economic boost to Kingston, directly and indirectly, providing jobs, new housing, increasing commercial activities, strengthening the historic atmosphere expanding the tax base and providing an incentive for future public and private investment," Koenig said.

"The city administration intends to continue its efforts in redevelopment in order to strengthen Kingston as a Mid-Hudson city on the march to making it a better place to live, work and raise our families during the 1970's," Koenig concluded.

Man Injured in Auto-School Bus Crash

State Police Lt. E. J. Minahan looks on, and Sgt. F. T. Petraglia points to the wreckage of a 1967 Volkswagen which crashed head-on into a school bus carrying BOCES students on Route 213 in the Town of Rosendale Thursday. No one on the bus was reported injured, but the driver of the auto, Lawrence Woodside, 26, of Bethpage, was listed in critical condition today in the intensive care unit at Benedictine Hospital. He was taken from the scene by Don's Ambulance. Police said Woodside crossed into the opposite lane while rounding a curve and slammed head-on into the bus, driven by Paula MacIntyre, 22, of Ellenville. (Freeman photo by Flaines).

Fuel Allocation Goes Into Effect

By United Press International

The government's mandatory allocation of heating oil for homes, jet fuel, kerosene, and diesel fuel went into effect Thursday as the coldest weather of the season rolled across the Rocky Mountains.

Georgia officials said some schools may have to close, a diesel shortage threatened the agriculture industry in California, bus service in Washington may be stopped for lack of fuel, and the airline industry said it is canceling 300 flights a day.

The energy crunch was not confined to the United States. Western European nations, which import 80 per cent of their fuel from the Middle East, were told Arab oil-producing countries are cutting back up to 26.5 per cent of the oil they have supplied. The announcement was seen as a move to pressure Western nations toward a pro-Arab settlement of the Middle East conflict.

Canada announced a 27 per cent increase in the export tax on crude oil shipped to the United States and allowed Eastern Canadian oil and gasoline prices to rise 2 cents a gallon.

And Saudi Arabia became the eighth Arabian country to stop exports of oil to Holland altogether saying the Netherlands are too sympathetic to Israel.

Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton predicted the United States, which gets only about 10 per cent of its petroleum from Arab nations, would share with West European nations the foreign oil supplies left available to them and the United States after the Arab cutbacks and reductions of oil shipments to the West.

Frosty autumn weather chilled a large part of the Northwest and spread southward, piling snow 10 inches deep in parts of Wyoming and lesser amounts in Colorado, Montana, and Washington on the first day of the mandatory fuel allocation program. Officials in Washington have said the severity of this year's winter will be a deciding factor in the fuel crisis.

California Deputy Director of Agriculture Robert Hartzell said a critical shortage of diesel fuel could "grind to a halt" the state's $6 billion agriculture industry.

"We could see the wheels of agriculture grind to a halt if we don't get additional fuel,"

Hartzell said. He said the threat was immediate for rice, corn, sorghum and sugar beets now being harvested. He said winter plowing for spring seeding also was seriously threatened.

In the nation's capital, a shutdown of public bus service was a possibility because of the sudden cancellation of a contract for fuel supplies under new federal energy policies.

A spokesman for the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority said Sun Oil Co. notified the agency it was terminating its deliveries of diesel fuel immediately. Metro officials were negotiating with Exxon.

The Massachusetts House gave tentative approval to a bill putting the state on year-round Daylight Saving Time as a fuel conservation measure.

In Georgia, officials say schools are in for "a very tough year." Paul Wills of the state's Department of Education said many schools may have to close temporarily during the winter. He said the school systems are getting 90 per cent of the fuel for buses and heating oil they received last year but this year they have more students.

American Airlines announced the immediate cancellation of 33 round trip flights daily, including five daily round trips between New York and Chicago. American's action followed Thursday's announcement by the Air Transport Association that the airline industry as a whole, which buys about 10 billion gallons of jet fuel a year, will try to cut some 300 flights daily from its 14,000-a-day schedule.

'Super Clean' Energy Without Radiation Hazards

By United Press International

The discovery of a new kind of nuclear reaction which may be able to produce "super clean" energy without radiation hazards common to present nuclear power plants was disclosed by scientists of the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) Thursday.

Weaver, who announced the discovery at a meeting of the American Physical Society in Philadelphia, said it would require "major advances" in technology to make it practical for energy production, since it requires heat of 3 billion degrees, but he said it would be worth it to try.

In a related development, the AEC said Thursday an experimental device for uranium enrichment broke apart Oct. 20 under the stress of centrifugal force, releasing a small amount of uranium hexafluoride into a work area in Oak Ridge, Tenn.

"There were no personal injuries," the AEC statement said. "Approximately 4 ounces of uranium hexafluoride were released in the building, but there was no radioactive overexposure of personnel. Many other centrifuges were unaffected by the incident and are continuing in test operation."

Weaver said the discovery of the new, safer reaction "contradicts the widespread belief that fission releases energy only in heavy elements like uranium and plutonium."

"It produces virtually no lingering radioactivity and thus could be the basis for super-clean power plants," he said.

He said the new reaction involved the fissioning of boron-11, the most common form of the element. He added that a heat of 3 billion degrees was required in order to get atoms of boron-11 to release their energy.

Weaver also said the temperature was "significantly hotter" than required for other forms of nuclear reactions, but said it could be achieved by powerful laser beams.

The announcement came as the United States, Canada and most of Europe were in a fuel crunch caused by shortages and the Middle East conflict. In Canada, Defense Minister James Richardson, who threatened to resign unless his country developed nuclear power, has apparently got his way.

Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau said under questioning in the House of Commons that "there are at least two sites in western Canada which are being considered" for heavy water plants.

Richardson earlier had said, "I couldn't live with a decision that did not include some future possible development of nuclear power in western Canada with federal government assistance."

Miami Widow Is Beaten and Strangled

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Marion Razete, a 67-year-old widow who was an epileptic and feared living alone, opened her house to human strays of all ages and races.

Thursday she was found dead in her North Miami house. She had been beaten and strangled. Her body was discovered by a young Vietnam veteran she invited home after he tried to panhandle a quarter from her.

Police said they are seeking two long-haired young drifters who accepted Mrs. Razete's hospitality a few days ago.

"We expected it. We warned her," said one neighbor as police combed the dead woman's house and yard. "She took those people in for company. I guess we could see what class of people they were."

Mrs. Razete had taught music after her husband's death and played piano at local concerts.

But she was afraid to live alone because she suffered epileptic seizures and so she took in homeless men and women, friends said.

Friends told police Mrs. Razete's husband, Vincent, died two years ago. Fearing she would be victimized, he had left her a trust fund which was administered by a lawyer.

Police said Mrs. Razete's sheltering of the homeless had caused problems in the past.

One man who stayed with her came back and tried to break into the house. Her telephone service was cut off because one boarder ran up a $600 phone bill.

"She was eccentric, but at heart a very charitable woman," said her attorney Thomas Balkes. "She had moments of great compassion and tenderness."

55 Guerrillas Killed By Cambodian Troops

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — The Cambodian military command said today government troops killed 55 guerrillas in a two-pronged trap along the road to a resort town on the Gulf of Siam.

Command spokesman Col. Am Rong said the fighting took place Thursday near Veal Sbaun, nine miles from Kep, a town on the gulf 80 miles south of Phnom Penh.

Am Rong said the rebel unit was caught between advancing government infantrymen and an assault force put ashore seven miles from Kep.

Government losses were 12 killed and 50 wounded, he said.

The government task force was driving to retake Kep, which fell to the Communists three weeks ago.

Other government units continued pressing closer to the town, supported by propeller-driven T28 fighter-bombers, gunboats and artillery, Am Rong said.

Government officials in Phnom Penh said exiled Prince Norodom Sihanouk's ailing mother, his daughter Bopha Devi, four of her children and more than 30 aides and servants would leave Cambodia for China Saturday.

The queen mother has been seriously ill and government authorities gave her permission to seek medical attention and visit her son.

The royal party is expected to leave in a chartered jet for Canton and then go to Peking where Sihanouk has been living since he was overthrown as Cambodia's leader March 18, 1970.

Congressional Hearings . . . Ford Weathers His First Day

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gerald R. Ford said he had nothing to hide. He earnestly detailed the cost of his son's orthodontistry and how he came to afford a condominium at the ski resort of Vail, Colo., on a congressman's salary.

The House Republican Leader's apparent eagerness to answer all questions—and his pledge to serve as "ready conciliator and calm communicator" between a warring president and Congress—helped Ford weather his first day Thursday of congressional scrutiny on his fitness to serve as vice president. The questioning was mild and laced with compliments. Lacking scandal, the nationally televised hearing before the Senate Rules Committee failed to attain the degree of drama which the Senate Watergate committee often has had, and by mid-afternoon half the seats were vacant, a phenomenon that never occurs before Sen. Sam J. Ervin's Watergate sessions. Ford's responses raised no apparent obstacle to his swift confirmation, possibly by Thanksgiving. But he will be called back

Monday to explain further his relationship with former lobbyist Robert Winter-Berger, who has sworn he gave Ford $15,000 that was never repaid—a charge Ford called "asinine" and "utterly preposterous."

In questioning Ford appeared to put some distance between himself and President Nixon on key Watergate questions. Unlike Nixon, for example, he said a president is subject to court orders. Nixon has argued a chief executive, as co-equal, can ignore the courts. Ford also said he would have revealed the non-existence of two Watergate tapes "at a much earlier date." He praised Nixon's choice of attorney general and special prosecutor and opposed the strong moves in Congress to turn over to Judge John J. Sirica authority to name the special prosecutor.

Ford called himself fiscally conservative, domestically moderate and an internationalist on foreign policy.

He protested mildly that "my views are not as conservative as might have been implied" but he did not argue when Committee Chairman Howard Cannon, D-Nev., said Ford had an "unbroken record of favoring big business during four years in the House."

Cannon called Ford the most thoroughly investigated nominee in history. Some 350 FBI agents and investigators from the Internal Revenue Service, the Government Accounting Office and Congress have accumulated 1,700 pages of data on his personal and political life.

Ford said he would, if required, yield to a suggestion from Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., and make public his tax returns for the last seven years, but he said he didn't think it was necessary for everyone to know how much he gave to his church and to the Boy Scouts.

Jaworski to Begin Probe of Missing Tapes

HOUSTON (UPI) — Newly appointed special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski, who says he'll begin his investigation where his predecessor Archibald Cox left off, plans to look into the matter of the missing presidential tapes before anything else.

"I plan to go to the tapes matter first," Jaworski said Thursday. "I didn't even know until just now which particular ones are missing. I tell you frankly that that wasn't discussed (Wednesday when he was asked to take the job)."

Jaworski, a veteran trial lawyer, conservative Texas Democrat and former president of the American Bar Association, said he will begin work in Washington Monday.

Jaworski said he hopes to be able to use Cox's files and added he would talk to Cox.

"I will want to use what Cox did," Jaworski said. "I know Mr. Cox. He is a highly capable, efficient gentleman. I will continue where Mr. Cox left off."

"I will want to talk to him. I will undertake to talk to him. I think he'll be helpful to my investigation."

At his news conference last week, Nixon said the new Watergate prosecutor would not be allowed access to presidential documents. But Jaworski said he has been guaranteed complete independence, possibly more than given Cox when he first assumed the post.

"There are no restraints on what I'll be permitted to do," he said. "I am not prevented from doing anything that I think needs doing."

"If I feel I need some material that I don't have, I will request it," he said. "I am not precluded from taking any action I deem necessary to get whatever evidence I need."

Jaworski said he was sounded out about the job as Watergate prosecutor three weeks before Cox accepted the job. He said he was not definitely offered the position but said the way in which the job was outlined made him tell administration officials he would not be interested in it if it were offered.

"I did not think at the time the independence was there that is there now," he said.

It was not clear what type of legislation Bork had in mind, but it was reported that when President William Howard Taft named Sen. Philander C. Knox secretary of state in 1909, Congress passed a law canceling the pay rise.

The New York Times today quoted Solicitor General Robert H. Bork, the acting head of the Justice Department, as saying, "remedial legislation will be forwarded to the Congress with the nomination."

"We are aware of the existence of the Constitutional provision in question," Saxbe's office said Thursday. "We believe there is precedent and we don't think this would bar voted a pay increase for the senator from being attorney general."

A provision of the Constitution says that no member of Congress shall "during the time for which he was elected be appointed to any civil office . . . which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time . . ."

Saxbe and the Constitutional Provision

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A provision of the Constitution prohibits Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio, from taking the $60,000 a year job as Attorney General he was nominated for Thursday. But his aides say Saxbe, if confirmed, will probably be able to serve.

Bell Blasts Transport Bond

KINGSTON — "If Ulster County is really going to get its promised road improvements why is there hesitancy on the part of Raymond T. Schuler, commissioner of the State Department of Transportation to put the comment in 'binding writing'?", Assemblyman H. Clark Bell asked today.

In a statement in total opposition to the $3.5 billion issue to be voted upon Nov. 6, Bell said, that not one dime of bond money will be spent in Ulster County.

"There is no legal commitment in the proposition itself and there is no legal commitment in any statutory law. Total discretion is vested in the Department of Transportation. In effect, the bond issue is a blank check," he said.

"We do, however, have the firm verbal commitment and assurances of Schuler. However, we live in unsettled times. Commissioners change and public priorities change. This, however, must be taken into consideration."

"From the point of view of cost the bond issue is without rival. Based on present actuarial assumptions, the 3.5 billion dollar bond issue would require about 2.4 billion dollars in interest charges to be paid off by the tax payers. That means a total of about 5.9 billion dollars for principal and interest, which, with simple mathematics, means almost 41 cents of every dollar will go for interest charges. That certainly is a very steep price to pay for capital construction," Bell explained.

"There is also the issue of indirect subsidization of current maintenance and operation costs of mass transit systems. Bond money would not be used for subsidization but state money from the executive budget earmarked for capital construction would be side-siphoned into the general fund time and again, where it could be used for and guarantees of environmental subsidization and, I believe, it impacted study reports.

"Verbal commitments have a way of growing faint with the passage of time and the specifics become fuzzy until that which appeared concrete flows through your fingers as assurances of getting its fair share and a written binding commitment authorized by Gov. Rockefeller was issued by Commissioner Schuler specifying the Route 209 out of the 1967 bond capital improvements, federal issue funds," Bell concluded.

Windy Night in The Valley

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Winds gusting up to 70 miles per hour knocked down trees and cut telephone service and electricity Thursday night in the Upper Hudson Valley region.

In Ulster County, high winds downed trees and tree limbs causing scattered power outages throughout the area. Central Hudson crews were answering calls into the pre-dawn hours but no major problems were reported.

No injuries were reported. About a dozen minor power disruptions occurred in Schenectady, Albany, Greene and Saratoga counties, a Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. spokesman said.

The National Weather Service said wind gusts of about 70 m.p.h. were reported in Schenectady.

The winds were expected to diminish today as a strong low pressure system pulls away from the region.

Gusts of up to 35 m.p.h. struck at the Albany County Airport. Officials at the Saratoga County Airport said a small plane had trouble landing because of a brief power out-

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, NOVEMBER 2, 1973

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The taxpayers were never supposed to find out how their money was squandered on President Nixon's San Clemente estate. When we started to investigate last year, government officials played keep-away with the facts.

The story of the cover-up is told in documents that have now fallen into our hands. The documents, though bearing the low classification "For Official Use Only," were treated as state secrets.

They should have been open to the public under the Freedom of Information Act. But when we sought them, the building supervisor at San Clemente, Carl Davis, suggested that "if so desired, these files could be accidentally misplaced."

I assigned my associate Brit Hume in September 1972, to investigate the San Clemente renovations. Brit's inquiries touched off an alarm inside the General Services Administration, which supervised the project.

"AWARE OF IT ALL"

The documents show that Brit questioned the construction engineer, William Robinson, on September 28, 1972. "Mr. Hume identified himself as being from Jack Anderson's office," reports a classified memo, "and was aware that Bill Robinson was the contracting officer at the Western White House, including the residence.

"It was apparent from the conversation that Mr. Hume was aware of all the contracts, scope of work, dollar amounts and contract numbers for all of the work which was done by Bill. . . . Mr. Hume said it appeared there was something fishy going on and said he would like to see the records. Bill told him he no longer had any records.

Instead of producing the records, however, GSA investigated how we learned about the misuse of money at San Clemente. There were urgent calls between San Clemente and Washington. E. W. Baughman, the regional director in charge of public buildings, reported: "I . . . received a call from Rick Fanske who had been in contact with Larry Roush and Frank Price (all GSA officials), and they wanted me to ascertain before the close of business who leaked the information to Hume, or how he obtained it."

"PROJECT SUNRISE"

As part of the cover-up, the work done for the President at San Clemente was known by the secret code name, "Project Sunrise." Recounted Baughman in his classified memo: "I called a quick meeting of those people who were knowledgeable on Operation Sunrise. . . .

"I also at this time contacted Ernest Garbarino, building manager, Western White House Field Office, and asked him to contact the City Building Department to determine what information they had available on the Western White House construction, and if this information was available to the public.

"Ernie called back and reported that Mr. Carl Davis, who is in charge of the building department at San Clemente, advised the files . . . are available to the public. . . . These files also carry the code name, 'Project Sunrise.' Mr. Davis indicated to Ernie that if so desired these files could be accidentally misplaced."

Baughman, meanwhile, ducked a telephone call from Brit. "The call was transferred to me and he was told I was not in," reported Baughman.

"NOT TO RESPOND"

He added: "I informed the people having knowledge of Project Sunrise if they were contacted by Mr. Hume or any other news media, they are not to respond to questions, and promptly refer such calls to the White House Press Office."

Despite the effort to obstruct our investigation, we were able to publish the first report on October 3, 1972, that the President was renovating his old Spanish villa in San Clemente, in part, with public funds. We cited a $13,500 bill that the taxpayers paid to buy the Nixons a new heating system.

The Secret Service bravely took the blame for the expenditure and offered us this imaginative explanation. "The heating system," said a spokesman, "was changed as a result of our suggestion that it be changed. We considered the former system to be in such condition that it was a threat to the President's security."

Yet the suppressed documents in our possession show that the President's architect, Harold Lynch, wrote White House aide John Ehrlichman on June 18, 1969, listing the expected expenses that should be charged to the President personally. One item was $11,807 for a system "to provide adequate heat for the residence."

NOT MENTIONED

There was also no mention of a new heating system in the original requests that the Secret Service made for government funds. Not until July 2, 1969, was the heating system added to the government expenses.

Noted John F. Galuardi, a GSA official, in a memo to the file: "The Secret Service had ruled out the proposal to provide gas-fired forced hot air heating in the residence, and were requesting GSA to install electric heating. In a later conversation, it was indicated that baseboard electric heaters were preferred by the family."

The taxpayers picked up the final $13,500 bill. The President, meanwhile, used the San Clemente estate as a write-off to help reduce his taxes. Despite a salary of $200,000 a year, he paid a federal income tax of only $792.81 in 1970 and $878.03 in 1971.

FOOTNOTE: A House subcommittee headed by Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., has just concluded a thorough investigation on the presidential homes. Brooks criticized the Secret Service and GSA for their apparent failure to protect the taxpayers' interests.

Vogt Is Backed

The reelection of Frank Vogt to a four-year term as District Attorney is necessary for the continued well-being of Ulster County.

Vogt has proved himself to be a vigorous, aggressive DA whose actions have been flavored with fairness towards the accused.

He has also been innovative in his post as public defender as evidenced by his implementation of the Fraud Bureau. Because of this successful tactic, reported complaints of cheating on auto repairs are down, as are complaints of unnecessary high bills dealing with television repairs.

Vogt has also shown himself to be a strong advocate of the state's tough new drug laws. His office, in following this line, has abolished plea bargaining in hard drug cases, with the consequence that dealing in drugs openly and blatantly is on the decline in this area.

Also in line with this, the percentage of felony convictions obtained by the District Attorney's office has also increased.

All in all, his efforts in behalf of the law abiding citizens have made Ulster County a safer place in which to live. The Freeman definitely feels Mr. Vogt deserves another term.

Supreme Court Justice

The contest for Justice of the State Supreme Court from the Third Judicial District is one of especial concern to area voters. The district consists partially of Ulster, Greene, Sullivan and Columbia counties so a qualified jurist is a must for this post.

The Freeman believes that person to be Family Court Judge Robert C. Williams of Sullivan County, a jurist who possesses an extensive and respected background in the courts.

Judge Williams had previously served as Sullivan County District Attorney for two terms where he earned the respect of both judges and defense attorneys alike for his handling of literally thousands of criminal prosecutions.

As a jurist, Judge Williams is familiar with the problems of Ulster County having presided in Kingston both as an acting County Judge, and acting Family Court Judge.

His experience and judicial achievements entitle him to be the voters' choice.

MEDALLION FOR KISSINGER—In addition to the Nobel Peace Prize which he originally shared with Le Duc Tho, who wouldn't accept it, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is to receive the 1973 Gold Medallion of the Society for the Family of Man, for his service in the cause of peace. The award is sponsored by the Council of Churches of the City of New York.

BOBBY FISCHER'S CHALLENGE—In Manila, where he helped open a chess tournament, Bobby Fischer said he would like to defend his title of world champion once a year and hang on to it at least until 1983. He challenged the Russians to offer him an adequate prize for a meeting.

FOREIGN DOCTORS' INFLUX—An editorial in the American Medical Association Journal challenged the prevailing attitude that the migration of thousands of foreign physicians to the United States is a "brain drain," seducing needed doctors from developing countries. Instead, it is an overflow of doctors from other lands, unable to apply at home the training they acquired here and abroad.

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY—The penniless Spanish Army officer who married the wealthy Carmen de Polo against her parents' wishes, 50 years ago, is now the 80-year-old Francisco Franco, Europe's longest reigning head of state. They celebrated their golden wedding anniversary October 22.

Brezhnev's Political Risks

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

MOSCOW — The fact that Moscow made no change in the flow of Jewish emigrants to Israel during or since the war of Yom Kippur shows how vital to the present Kremlin leadership the policy of detente with the U.S. has become.

Said one Soviet Official: "The Arabs bitterly complained that while America was sending arms to Israel, we were sending men to Israel." Soviet officials claim to the Arabs that the emigration cannot be legally stopped, which is ridiculous. The real reason it continues is to avoid a public explosion in the U.S.

Likewise, an extraordinary effort is being made to pretend that the refusal of the U.S. Congress to extend trading equality to the Soviet Union is really a minor matter. That may be true from a strictly economic standpoint, but privately Soviet officials admit that from a political and psychological standpoint it has been a major setback.

The stage is now being carefully set to withstand a probable second major blow from Congress: legislation denying U.S. credits to help finance the economic deals.

Moscow is trying to work out — with no conspicuous success despite the headlines — with American business. Showing a stiff upper lip, Soviet leaders say the U.S. may block credits for now but sooner or later will end such discrimination.

In fact, however, denial of U.S. credits would force-feed party leader Leonid Brezhnev a very bitter pill. Although Brezhnev carefully extracted a blank check for detente from the Politburo last April (including the secret police and the military, each of whom now have a seat on the 17-member Politburo) he cannot go on forever getting slapped down by the U.S. without serious damage to his power and prestige.

As of today, there is literally no public dissent to Brezhnev's policy of detente. Moscow has paid Washington $28 million as the first installment on the $7 billion lend-lease debt. That was the Soviet side of the bargain under which President Nixon promised most-favored-nation trade equality and long-range credits. There will be no further lend-lease payments until the U.S. delivers — but no word of implied criticism of Brezhnev has been allowed.

However, thoughtful Soviet proponents of detente are getting plenty worried. They claim that "every-one" is for detente, but then add elliptically that there are many skeptics not yet satisfied detente is "possible."

Translated, that means detente faces growing and important opposition inside the party or the army or both. And that in turn means Brezhnev may soon face internal political threats which would compel him to veer away from detente.

Thus, while congressional actions may have only small economic effects, they could have decisive and explosive political effects here. That explains Moscow's unprecedented wooing of American public and governmental opinion.

But this courtship, at a time when Khrushchevian political reforms are being turned off, does not come close to meeting American demands for an open society agreeable to political dissent. To the contrary, the courageous civil libertarian and nuclear physicist, Andrei Sakharov, is now being castigated in high party levels as mentally unbalanced. Alexander Solzhenitsyn, one of the world's truly great authors, is ridiculed by these same officials as "not a real writer."

Nor has the slightest sign been seen here of serious reduction in the alarming growth of strategic nuclear weapons or of relaxation of the rigorous Soviet control of the Eastern European bloc.

To the contrary, the Soviet army is widely believed to be sending hundreds of the new T-62 tanks to Eastern Europe. That may be part of the numbers game in preparation for a U.S.-Soviet agreement on mutual reduction of arms in central Europe, or it may not. No Westerner here presumes to know.

Thus, while Brezhnev is pushing ahead hard with many small "detente-isms" such as unjamming the Voice of America and keeping the emigration pipeline going, he is not beginning to approach the harder issues that matter so much to the U.S. Congress. Unless he does, detente may lose its glow here as Brezhnev fails to obtain the promised benefits. If so, Brezhnev's own glow will also start to dim.

Wanting to Know a Man Better

Mario Cioffi and I met but once. He stood short and drenched with dignity beside a shiny Fiat. The Giulio Cesare was docked at Naples. From the promenade deck, I had studied the sweep of the green bay, the hills confettied with villas, and a wisp of smoke from Vesuvius staining the sky.

There were many taxis on the shore side of the pier. Men shouted in Italian and English to tourists. I walked through them to Mario Cioffi. The Fiat was not new when Signor Cioffi bought it in 1943. It sparkled in the sun. So did the man's high black shoes. And his eyes.

He did not shout. He would not bargain. He would show Naples to me for a price. A fair price. His English words walked slowly with a white cane.

I asked permission to sit up front with him. He gave it thought. Then he nodded gravely. "If you please, sir," he said. I paid him before

I got in, and I paid him double. This was wrong. He refused. I was not trying to be an "Ugly American." I was beset by a feeling — a premonition — that this short man with the tilted chin, the wings of white at the temples, the thick mustache, was going to be of greater interest than Naples.

Cars flashed and bounced past on cobbled streets. Mario Cioffi maintained a precise, slow gait. He told me of the great buildings, the monuments, the history of a wayward city. I asked questions.

The Fiat is all he has. It is his life, his living, his food, his drink. Two grandchildren were christened from this car. Three weddings featured the Fiat. Not counting seven trips to the Cemetery.

Signor Cioffi and the Fiat saw the Germans man pillboxes on the road to Sorrento and Salerno. In the war, he heard American bombers over the roaring flames of the docks and watched big apartment buildings fold inward in slow motion.

"For the health of the car," I said, pressing the extra money into his kerchief pocket. He smiled. He condescended to permit me to call him Mario, but he would not refer to me as Jim. "For the health of the car."

His face is thin and pointed, a crushed olive. Some of the teeth are silver. The car, he said, would be ashamed of a squeak. We drove south and up into the hills. When we stopped for a cold drink, he would refuse twice, then shrug and accept.

His sense of propriety precluded evasions and lies. Fascist? "Yes, I was a Fascist. Mussolini did much good many years ago, but when I talk to my friends, none of them were Fascist. Just Mussolini and me: a political force of two — you comprehend?"

He drove south on the Autostrada. He smiled at the enormous shoulders of Mount Vesuvius. "As you know," he said, "she's a no work since 1944." The preface, "As you know," was his polite fiction to pretend that the passenger knew.

Signor Cioffi is a man of contentment. He assures his wife that he can afford meat on the table once a week. The health of the Fiat insures it. His hobby is grandchildren. "Always 'appy," he says. The silver teeth are displayed. "Half a loaf of bread — some fruit — 'appy."

Napoli, he says gravely, is the home of the pizza. Not Rome. Not Milano. Signora Cioffi does not make pizza. She boils potatoes and beans and cooks macaroni. She serves it with a yellow melon called bompkins. And a liter of ordinary wine.

Sometimes, to vary the menu, they have yellow and green peppers in oil. I ask more questions. Gasoline costs $1 a gallon. He needs two and a half gallons for this trip. His fee was $10. There is wear and tear on his old taxi, a $90 annual tax and $50 a year for a driver's license. "The car license," he says, making his first mistake in English, "is according to the horsepower."

At Pompeii, he shows vague embarrassment. He turns me over to a guide. On August 24th, in the year 79, the volcano erupted and 25,000 people in Pompeii were buried in hot ashes. A few erotic paintings on the wall can be discerned.

On the way out, my new friend shows me a big white marble bathtub. The translation from the Latin on the outside is impossible. Quoting loosely, it reads: "This public tub donated by Tiberius and Caligula. Vote for them for Rome senate."

It was easy to leave Naples. Parting from Mario Cioffi was another matter. At sundown, I knew I was leaving a man I would like to know. . .

Beame Has Staggering Lead In Daily News Straw Poll

NEW YORK (UPI)—For three of the four major candidates for mayor, what started as an impossible dream is becoming a bad, hopeless nightmare.

The second results of the usually reliable Daily News straw poll showed Abraham D. Beame, the city's comptroller, getting a staggering 58 per cent of the vote.

State Sen. John J. Marchi, the Republican, had 16 per cent; Assemblyman Albert H. Blumenthal, the Liberal, had 12 per cent; Rep. Mario Biaggi, the Conservative, had 14 per cent.

Discouraging polls have a way of drying up campaign contributions and, according to Marchi, "In the absence of divine intervention, you have to have money."

Polls are only one factor in a series of events that have conspired to produce voter apathy and make this a bad year for a darkhorse.

The candidates have competed for attention with events in Washington, Baltimore, the Mideast and Shea Stadium. The candidates lost.

In addition, next Tuesday will be the third time around for a mayoral race. There were the primaries in June and, three weeks later, a runoff of the Democratic primary between Beame and Rep. Herman Badillo which the comptroller won overwhelmingly.

Then there is the simple arithmetic of party registration. There are about 2.5 million registered Democrats in the city, 650,000 Republicans, 100,000 Liberals and 75,000 Conservatives.

Combine all this, and it would appear that Beame would need a Watergate in his closet to prevent his becoming the city's first Jewish mayor and, at age 67, the oldest since the city consolidated in 1898.

The overriding issue in this campaign has been crime in the streets.

If elected, Beame said he would hire more police and put them on the beat and pay for more overtime for the ones already there.

"I'm the only candidate who knows how to do it," he said.

It is the constant theme of his campaign, his fiscal expertise gained in a 23-year joust with the city budget. "Nobody knows the buck like Abe Beame," the posters say.

Beame sees Marchi, 52, of Staten Island, as his strongest opponent.

Marchi's message is that the city's criminal justice system is a shambles and liberal attempts to reform it have turned the city into a crime "war zone."

Marchi would increase police protection but his emphasis would be on court reform.

Where Marchi believes that crime is the result of "spiritual alienation," Blumenthal, 44, of Manhattan, the deputy minority leader of the state Assembly, looks to social factors as a root cause.

"The real crime is poor housing and poor education and unemployment," Blumenthal said.

Biaggi, 56, of the Bronx, the most decorated officer in the history of the city's Police Department, had credibility on the crime issue.

An earthy, dapper man, he was an effective street campaigner, but his candidacy has never recovered from his admission that he took the Fifth Amendment before a federal grand jury.

As the acknowledged front-runner, the campaign of Beame, a 5-foot-2, cautious and gray-haired man, has taken on a mayor-elect quality that was evident in Queens last month as the candidate stepped from his campaign car to make some phone calls. He went to a pay phone in a bar.

A city sanitation truck stopped outside and two workers approached the bar. They saw Beame and decided against it. "Don't want to get the new boss mad," one said.

Red Missiles in Egypt

WASHINGTON (AP) — After initial skepticism, U.S. officials are virtually certain that Egypt has Russian-built missiles capable of hitting Israeli cities.

Intelligence sources reported about 20 mobile SCUD missiles with a range of up to 200 miles have been identified as being in Egypt. Missiles with such a reach probably could hit Tel Aviv and Jerusalem if fired from northern Egypt, they said.

Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim refused to comment on the reports.

There were strong indications the guided missiles are armed with high explosives rather than nuclear warheads.

Even so, the missiles could cause significant damage and bring the war to Israeli civilians.

American intelligence specialists are unable to say whether the missiles are manned by Russians or Egyptians.

Either way, the reported appearance of the SCUDs in Egypt adds a serious new military factor to the unresolved Arab-Israeli dispute. For the first time it puts in Egypt a major offensive weapon that can be aimed at Israeli cities.

It also increases the possibility that the Israeli air force might launch a pre-emptive strike to knock out that missile threat in any new flare-up of tension in the Middle East.

U.S. intelligence sources and other government officials tended to brush aside the claim of President Anwar Sadat of Egypt when he said Oct. 16 that the Egyptians have missiles "now ready for firing . . . to the very depths of Israel at any moment."

As a matter of prudence, U.S. intelligence took a closer look after the Sadat claim. Sources said this turned up persuasive evidence that there are major bomb and missile missiles in Egypt.

Third Street . . . 'Melting Pot'

SUEZ, Egypt (AP) — Es-Musallas — Suez's Third Street — is about 15 paces wide and three blocks long, ending in sand dunes. The north curb is held by Israel, the southern by Egypt. In between are U.N. troops.

From a trench at the corner of Es-Musallas and the Suez-Ismaillia road, the Israelis watch dozens of Egyptian soldiers and local residents on the opposite curb staring back.

The civilian population of Suez was once 300,000, but has dwindled to about 15,000 in the more than six years since the 1967 Arab-Israeli war closed the Suez Canal.

Eight blocks of drab, shell-shattered apartments at the northern end of Suez are in Israeli hands. The Israelis say they also control all the land exits from the town; the Egyptians hold the rest and the port.

If there is hatred, it is not apparent. The clusters of Israelis and Egyptians on opposite sides of the street resemble pedestrians at a traffic light that doesn't turn green.

In the middle of the street, two blue-helmeted Finns from the U.N. Emergency Force sit by a field telephone. They might pass for traffic cops, but the only traffic they have to direct is an occasional Red Cross car.

Nobody on the Israeli side feels friendly toward the Arab view of the Egyptians.

troops; the fighting is still fresh in the soldiers' memories.

"There are bodies of our men still lying behind Egyptian lines," said one Israeli. Others said they have seen Egyptian soldiers across the street carrying Israeli submachine guns and wearing Israeli webbed belts.

The Israelis have planted two burned-out Egyptian trucks on their side of the street in full view of the Egyptians.

LWV Urges Yes Vote on Amendment No. 1

KINGSTON — The League of Women Voters of Ulster County (Kingston, New Paltz, Saugerties, and Woodstock) believe these fears to be groundless. State Amendment No. 1 is not a new exemption. In 1963 voters approved a similar amendment to be in force for 10 years, and many communities took advantage of it to build needed sewage treatment plants under the 1965 Pure Water Bond Program. There were no outstanding problems with the exemption amendment, but its authority has expired. If communities at or near their debt limits are to construct further needed sewage treatment plants, State Amendment No. 1 must be passed, the league claims.

There is also a difference of opinion about the significance of water pollution if the amendment is defeated. Opponents believe the need for more sewage treatment facilities and argue that, having made a contract, we should now live within our means. Yet the longer communities wait to initiate pollution control, the higher the costs to do the job and the greater the pollution which must eventually be cleaned up.

Construction costs for sewage treatment plants have risen about 15 per cent per year, of sewage treatment plants, it doubling the cost of these facilities within six years. In addition, delays could mean that the sizable state and federal aid available for new projects (about 87 1/2 per cent of the total cost) might be used up before local applications for the aid are even filed.

If State Amendment No. 1 is defeated, localities near their debt limits have no good way to finance the local share of sewage treatment plants, it funding even the local share (about 1 1/2 per cent of the total cost) from annual revenues. Sewage water pollution control projects from annual revenues. Sewage plants cost from $1,250,000 to $700,000, depending on the volume of waste handled. Special treatments for particular problem materials in sewage, like phosphorus or nitrate removal, add even more to the costs. Because of downstream or underground purposes, recreation, commercial fishing or plain old-fashioned scenic enjoyment. Although State Amendment No. 1 will be of direct benefit to municipalities at or near their debt limit, we will all reap the benefits of cleaned waters. The League of Women Voters of Ulster County urge county residents to help protect their environment — with a yes vote.

May in Plea For Continuity

WOODSTOCK — Vern May, Republican candidate for the office of supervisor of the Town of Woodstock, concluded the 1973 campaign today with a plea for continuity as the town approaches another administration.

"I haven't heard anyone seriously question the success of the present administration," May commented. "The opposition has not, offered any reasonable objections or alternatives to the programs we have begun."

"I intend to see our new programs through to completion by serving another term as supervisor, and I ask the voters of Woodstock to help me do this by electing the first class team we have assembled as Republican candidates for this year. We think the members of that team represent the broadest possible cross section of points of view in our community," he explained.

"Marge Harder, our town clerk, and Ray Van Valkenburgh are well known to all voters of Woodstock. Each of them can proudly stand on a fine record of achievement," May said.

"But proven performance is only half the requirements for a viable town government," May said. "To make the whole thing really work, you must also have individuals who represent every faction of interest throughout the town and people who can communicate with all the voters."

"We spent a great deal of time trying to anticipate the concerns of the community and to provide candidates who could measure up to their demands. After much deliberation, the town Republican leadership came up with the names of Val Cadden for the post of councilman and James Kinns for Town Justice."

"Each of these individuals in his or her own way provide incomparable resources to offer the voters during this election year," he said.

Schermerhorn Hails Savago On Detention Center Move

KINGSTON — State Sen. Richard E. Schermerhorn, (R-40th Dist.) explained today that "That recent decision by the New York State Division for Youth to establish a juvenile detention center in the Mid-Hudson area is the culmination of the untiring efforts Ulster County Legislature — Peter Savago (R-Dist. 8), a sincere and dedicated public official.

"As a result of this action, the courts in the Mid-Hudson area will not be subject to the extraordinary funding requirements such as was recently experienced in Ulster County when they had to detain a youth in the Nassau County facility," Schermerhorn said. The senator further stated: "It is indeed gratifying to all of us to know that we have elected representatives such as Legislature Chairman Savago who have the foresight to pursue projects such as this which are so essential to the courts in the detention and control of youthful offenders."

KINGSTON VOTERS!

Just as the Democrats had their Teapot Dome scandal, so have the Republicans their Watergate — both dismal convivances conceived by Politicians! And so, not until AFTER the 1972 election, did the Politicians FIRST reveal the tentative 1973 Ulster County budget, wherein their sorry attempt to not only raise their town legislative salaries by some 60%, but also the salaries of their political cohorts on the County payroll, was first unearthed and discovered!

Remember Who Stopped Them?

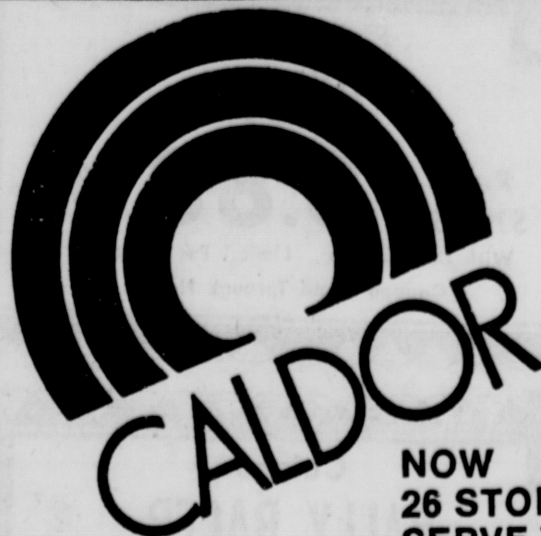

Like your current tax Bills? How about that well publicized "Revenue Sharing" that was supposed to ease the taxpayers' burdens, but instead has become a "Plum Pie" for the legislators, so deeply buried that even the Washington "plumbers" would be unable to reach it! Seen the tentative 1974 county budget yet, or heard any "leaks" from it? You won't, either, until after election!

Remember—the Politicians will have their Party "machine vote" for their support!

Lasher said the Village of New Paltz has "dragged its feet for close to 10 years and now that it is time for bids, Logan is styming the town's portion of the project."

He said that Logan has attempted to make it appear he has found the answer for the New Paltz taxpayers, "but it

DEMOCRATS FOR STEDGE

To Enrolled Democrats in the Town of Ulster

This Election Is Extremely Important

We Ask You to Please Consider the Consequences of Your Vote

On Tuesday, November 6th

This is a crucial time in our town. This year we have a 3-way race for the office of Supervisor. The Democratic candidate, from all indications, is running third and the Independent candidate, Robert Stedge, is breathing down the back of the incumbent Republican.

Independent, Robert Stedge, whom we endorsed four years ago and whom we encouraged to be a candidate this year with our promise of endorsement is carrying our battle for a responsible two-party system.

Robert Stedge can win with our help. Because of his integrity, dedication, and experience he has the support of the Independents and a large segment of the Republicans. If we don't help him, the best chance in years to dislodge the entrenched political machine will be lost.

This town can no longer afford the present ineffective, inefficient, and unresponsive administration that doesn't care about or understand the people's problems.

Remember, we will have no one to blame but ourselves if this present administration is kept in office.

Sabino Hits Garbage Proposal

TOWN OF ULSTER plus benefits and $25,000 to finance the municipal garbage pick up service would cost the tax payers of the Town of Ulster more than $25,000, which is more than the entire budget for the general fund which it now takes to run the town.

The incumbent Republican Supervisor of the Town of Ulster Carmine Sabino was critical today of a proposal by an Independent candidate Robert Stedje favoring municipal garbage collection.

It would be too costly to the taxpayers, said Sabino, who is seeking a third term as supervisor. Stedje advocates garbage collection by the town, according to a recent press release, instead of by a refuse collection firm, which presently does this work on contract.

Sabino said that "Last spring the town did a survey for the purpose of studying municipal garbage collection and concluded it would be too costly."

Sabino said that estimated costs of the Stedje plan show that it would cost the town: at least $75,000 for trucks; more than $100,000 for annual payroll,

Incumbent Gov't Is Scored

A nine-man committee of Democrats for Independent candidate for supervisor of the Town of Ulster Robert Stedje released a statement today in which it was indicated "the town can no longer afford the present ineffective, inefficient and unresponsive administration that doesn't care about or understand the people's problems."

Margo Vallery, Jane DeWitt, Alan Griggs, Joan Langton, Joan Aumand, George Moore, George Starkman and Maxine and Willard Goodheim said they feel "this is a crucial time in our time. This year we have a three-way race for the office of supervisor."

They said that the Democratic candidate (Aaron Bahl), from all indications "is running third" and Stedje is "breathing down the neck of the incumbent Republican" (Carmine Sabino).

They said that Stedje "whom we endorsed four years ago and whom we encouraged to be a candidate this year with our promise of endorsement is carrying our battle for a responsible two-party system."

"It would be impossible and illegal to serve businesses and constituents of the Town of Ulster, since no town equipment can leave town roads," Sabino explained.

"The following businesses, and many more, would be adversely affected financially by municipal garbage collection pick up: Big Scot, Gelco, IBM, Johnson Ford, Howard Johnson, Mammoth Mall, Mayfair Theatre, Montgomery Ward, Shop-Rite, Wallaces, Ramada Inn and Drug City," Sabino claimed.

"These businesses would suffer from a higher assessment," Sabino said but could not be serviced directly by the town. A private collector would have to be hired to carry the refuse to the town road. The same condition would exist for many homes and mobile homes located off public highways which would not benefit directly by this service; however, they too would be affected by the increased assessment," he said.

Sabino also explained that, "The equipment which is now housed at the Landfill Site and fully paid for would be necessary under environmental standards, regardless of whether or not the town adopted the municipal garbage collection."

"The difference between the amount allotted in the budget for the landfill, and the approximate cost of $350,000, which would be necessary to pick up service would cost the tax payers of the Town of Ulster more than $25,000, which is more than the entire budget for the general fund which it now takes to run the town."

My experiences as a Legislator brought me into daily contact with the problems of our society and the challenges they offered to work out just and lasting solutions. It was with sincere regret that I could not offer my candidacy to the voters of Kingston in the current election. However, I am happy to have the opportunity to ask my many friends and supporters of the past to vote for a candidate who fulfills with great abundance all of the qualifications that in my opinion add up to just about the IDEAL candidate. He is a former Supervisor from the old Second Ward and a former Legislator from the City of Kingston. He has spent a lifetime in the interest of people and ways and means of improving their lot in life.

I feel that I am performing a real civic function in the interest of all our citizens in urging the election of

KINGSTON
The Seventh Annual Ulster County Chamber of Commerce Career Opportunities Day has been scheduled for Thursday Dec. 27 in the Holiday Inn of Kingston.

Dr. George B. Erbstein, chairman of the event, pointed out that almost 1,200 people have been interviewed for employment opportunities during the previous six years. Last year some 180 people participated in the six-hour event. It's anticipated a similar number will be on hand this year.

Aimed at college seniors and returning veterans, the program is designed to bring employers and potential employees together, conveniently, in one location. An added goal is to keep area young people from leaving and seeking employment elsewhere.

Each employer participating in the program will be set up in a private room at Holiday Inn. This will assure everyone of a confidential interview. The hours will be from noon to 6 p.m.

Any business or industry interested in discussing possible participation in Career Opportunities Day is urged to call the Chamber (338-5100) for further information.

A list of participating employers will be announced next week. At this time, some 1,000 letters of invitation are being sent to college seniors from Ulster County. Most of the County school systems are cooperating with the Chamber by supplying necessary information.

Working with Dr. Erbstein on this year's event are Mrs. Mary Guziak, Mrs. William Krum, William Tucotte, and Marion E. Tongue, a Chamber vice president.

Hon. Hugh R. Elwyn

The following are excerpts from two letters received by Judge Elwyn's office from a local Junior High School Principal:

"This morning I appeared in your Court in the matter of _____ Junor High School and 'John Doe'.

"The purpose of this letter is to express my sincere and deep appreciation for your compassion and understanding in the handling of this case.

"It became evident as I sat in your Court, that you had a true and deep concern for the solution of this boy's problem. I could not help but admire your action in this case. As one who has handled countless disciplinary problems at the public school level, I feel I may have a little understanding of some of the situations you must face.

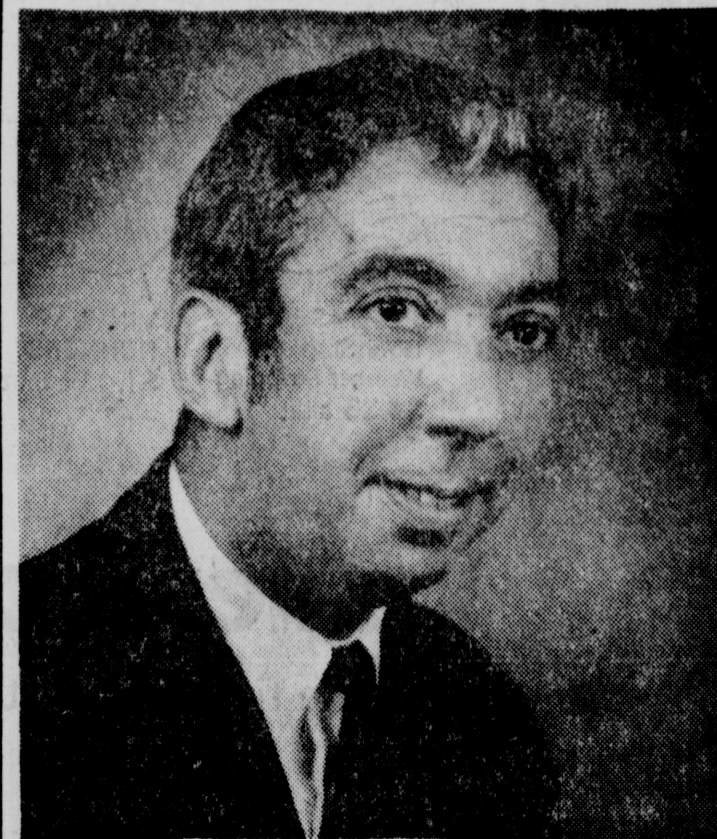

"I left your Court with a deep feeling of satisfaction. Again, please accept my thanks for your efforts.

"After leaving your Court, both 'John Doe's mother and aunt expressed to me admiration for your judgement."

And from a follow-up letter concerning the same case:

"I am most pleased to report that 'John' has been attending school regularly since opening day this term. He is cheerful and cooperative. I could not be more pleased with the 'turn-about' in his attitude."

Board Vote on Landfill Site 'Unpopular' in Wawarsing

By WADE BURKHART

WAWARSING of the hamlet of Wawarsing at a price of $55,000 for the new town landfill. It was an 11th hour decision Thursday night, but set off for the board. The town's option shockwaves that could have a marked effect on next Tuesday's elections.

The board, which has been operating with four men since the death some months ago of Councilman James Furman, was even more shorthanded Thursday night in the absence of Councilman James Barthel. It took a unanimous vote of all three board members present — Supervisor Frank Harkin, and Councilmen Frank Greco and Frank Sahler — to approve the purchase of a 55-acre tract from John A. Yerkins.

Wawarsing residents at the meeting "and everyone we can call up before the election," but they both said they were doing the right thing and voted for the land purchase.

Sahler said the town had needed a landfill for 10 years, and the town board had actively been searching for one for about five years. Sites have been proposed in the past, but a combination of community pressure and site inadequacies have combined to kill all of them.

Greco said "all possibilities have been exhausted" in the search. Sahler promised to continue the search for another site, but Greco made no such promise. He said as far as he was concerned the landfill was going on the site the board had found, the Yerkins site. "I don't need two of them," he said.

Before the vote on the purchase, the Wawarsing residents attacked the site as being in a too-highly settled area, a danger to water supplies, and a detriment to property values. Harkin said that if all the landfill sites the board had proposed were as bad as neighboring residents said they were, "we might better ship our garbage out of town."

Highway Department Bids Awarded in Saugerties

SAUGERTIES depend on a show of interest by enough applicants to make the program feasible. The board granted a 10-day extension to Frances Meisburger to make application for a trailer permit. She had been cited by the town building inspector for installing the trailer on her property before applying for a permit, a practice that drew the criticism of Supervisor A. Michael Schovel.

The Board approved trailer applications for Gloria Cimorelli of Delaware Street, Glasco, Valley Equipment Company, A Lorraine C. Becker of Dave Elliott Road, and Nancy Nitschke of Lauren Tice Road.

The board noted a letter from Mrs. Donna Anderson of Mt. Marion asking that a speed limit of 30 miles an hour be established on a portion of Old King's Highway between the Glasco Turnpike intersection and the Plattkill Creek Bridge. Schovel noted that the board in October had forwarded a request to the Ulster County would help direct traffic at Highway Department for the public events and perform other speed limit there, and directed limited police duties. The board that a copy of the letter be said adoption of the plan would sent to Mrs. Anderson.

Requests were received for repairs to two fire hydrants in Veteran and three on Spalding Lane. Schovel said that the two in Veteran and two of the three on Spalding Lane had already been repaired, and said that the remaining hydrant on Spalding Lane would have to be dug up for more extensive repairs.

Highway Superintendent Alphonse Ferrara was authorized to advertise for bids for snow removal in the Barclay Heights area. Bids will be opened at 4 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 15, at the town hall.

In other action the board: — Announced that the Department of Audit and Control had acknowledged receipt of a letter notifying them of the establishment of new Mt. Marion Fire District, one of two formed by splitting the former Mt. Marion-Ruby district.

— Proclaimed Sunday, Nov. 18, as Friends of the Children of Vietnam Day in the town.

— Named Gary Edward Anderson of Mt. Marion as a part-time special patrolman on the town police force.

The Wawarsing residents also charged that secrecy had surrounded the land purchase. Greco pointed out to them that they had known about the option since they filed a petition with the board against the site last May, and that Department of Environmental Conservation approval of the site had been received in a letter dated Oct. 31.

To add to the town's landfill problems, Sahler revealed that not only had the county board of health told the town that the present landfill in Kerhonkson was being operated improperly, but that local residents were suing the town for $200,000 for property encroachment. Sahler said the residents had their property surveyed, and claimed the town was dumping on their property.

In other action, the board responded to a request from Dist. 10 Legislator Alex J. Nirenberg to write letters to state representatives advocating the repeal of legislation freezing the assessments on telephone company property after 1974. Nirenberg said he would not mind if the board thought the measure over, but Greco said he had made a note to bring the matter up at the meeting, and introduced the resolution.

Nirenberg, a Democratic candidate for councilman, said he had a similar resolution ready for the upcoming meeting of the county legislature.

Association Completes Services Study

KINGSTON — A special committee of the Ulster County Association for Mental Health has recently completed a study of mental health services in Ulster and six neighboring Mid-Hudson counties.

Results of the study have not been announced. The other six counties studied were Columbia, Delaware, Dutchess, Greene, Orange and Sullivan.

According to Mrs. Patricia K. Reppert of Woodstock, a member of the board of directors of the local mental health association, who coordinated the study, the goals of the survey included:

- To describe the mental health services of these counties using the parameters of the comprehensive mental health plan, which include out-patient services, partial hospitalization, in-patient services on a local level, emergency coverage and consultation and education;
- To outline the financing for these services, such as county allocation, state and federal contribution and other sources;

- To give the number of personnel employed to provide these mental health services and the salary ranges.

Mrs. Reppert added, "The information gathered is for 1972. No judgments should be attempted based on the data collected in this study as to the effectiveness of any county's mental health program. However, some general impressions can be gathered about the scope of the seven counties' mental health services and the financing of these programs."

Other board members who assisted with the study are Mrs. Joan Maxwell of Gardiner, Mrs. Marie Rohde of Highland, Mrs. Beatrice Snyder of Olivebridge and Michael K. Wood of Kingston. The Mental Health Association is a member agency of United Way of Ulster County.

Levitt Lists Completion Of Fiscal Examinations

ALBANY — State Comptroller Arthur Levitt has announced the completion of examinations of fiscal affairs of a number of cities, towns, villages and schools and other special districts in the State.

Among these reports were those on the Highland Fire District in the Town of Lloyd, and the Claryville Fire District, in the Towns of Denning and Sullivan.

Copies of the examination reports have been sent to the officials of the units of government concerned and are on file at the respective offices. The reports are a public record, and may be reviewed by interested citizens.

NAMED TO POST — John H. Dwyer of 66 Madison Avenue, Kingston, has been named to the Advisory Council at Marist College in Poughkeepsie. The council is composed of members of the college community selected by the president to give direction to the college's future development, including policy development, planning and budgeting. Dwyer came to Marist in July, 1972, from Bryant College in Smithfield, Rhode Island. He received both his bachelor's and master's degrees in business administration from Bryant. He currently serves as registrar at Marist.

Acting Dean of Studies Is Appointed at Paltz

NEW PALTZ — Dr. Angelos V. Patsis, former chairman of the Department of Chemistry at the State University College at New Paltz, has been appointed the college's acting dean of graduate studies, President Stanley K. Coffman Jr. announced today.

He succeeds Dr. Alan Donovan, who resigned as acting dean last summer to take a post at Glassboro State College in New Jersey. The appointment was made by the Trustees of the State University of New York and is effective immediately.

As dean of graduate studies, Dr. Patsis is responsible for admission of graduate students, the quality and kinds of graduate programs, the qualifications of graduate faculty members and related areas. His office also administers proposals for research grants. He reports to the Vice President for Academic Affairs.

Born in Greece, Dr. Patsis received his bachelor's degree in chemistry from Athens University and his Ph.D. in chemical physics from Case-Western Reserve University.

Before joining the New Paltz faculty Dr. Patsis worked several years as a research chemist at the former E.I. du Pont de Nemours, Inc. facility in Newburgh.

Appointed an assistant professor at the college in 1966, he was promoted to associate professor in 1967 and to professor in 1969. He was named chairman of his department in 1970.

Marriage Vows Are Exchanged

Miss Marilyn Rose Bresadola, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Bresadola, Phoenicia, exchanged nuptial vows with Michael Dennis Mac Dougal, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mac Dougal of Essex on Saturday, Oct. 20 in St. Francis De Sales Church, Phoenicia.

The Rev. Walter McMahon, cousin of the bridegroom, celebrated the nuptial Mass and officiated at the wedding ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by Linda Kreitner of Mt. Tremper. Dawn Louise Hommes served as flower girl.

The bride wore a floor length empire gown of white satin, styled with a white flocked satin bodice and round neckline. Satin cuffs accented the flocked satin and chiffon sleeves. Imported pearl drop beads encircled the bodice, sleeves and cuffs. Her elbow length illusion veil was attached to a crown of white seed pearls and aurora borealis crystals.

Dear Abby

Door Swings Both Ways for Parents, Kids

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: You recently published the following:

DEAR ABBY: Our brother is 21. He just graduated from college, and has a job that pays him $100 a week. Brother wants to live at home with our parents. They think it will teach Brother a sense of responsibility if he pays them $75 a month for his room and board.

Since Brother is the oldest of six children, what goes for him will probably go for the rest of us.

We don't think children should have to pay to live with someone they love.

Our whole family would like to know how you feel about this.

THE OTHER KIDS

DEAR KIDS: How long should an able-bodied, gainfully employed 21-year-old expect to live with Mama and Papa for free? Six months? A year? Forever? Circumstances and opinions differ in all families, however, reasonable people should be able to agree to terms that will satisfy both the lover and the loves.

Abby, let's put it this way:

DEAR ABBY: We are the parents of a 21-year-old son who has just graduated from college. Now that he has a nice apartment and is making a good salary, we would like to sell our house and move in with him.

He thinks we should pay $75 a month for room and board. We don't think parents should have to pay to live with someone they love. What do you think, Abby? Sign this...

"THE PARENTS"

DEAR PARENTS: That door swings both ways. Parents who are able to support themselves shouldn't freeloader on their kids.

DEAR ABBY: In answer to the girl who thought she was getting too much attention from her father in law: She doesn't know how lucky she is. I once had the same problem, or thought I did. Then my husband died at an early age, and my father in law expressed his love for me. To make a long story short, I married my father in law. I was 30, and he was 60. We had a wonderful life together and are still in good health. I am now 60, and he is 90.

So, don't put down the father in law, chances are he is a lot like his son, only older.

HAPPY WITH PAPPY DEAR ABBY: You don't say where mother in law was when father in law "expressed his love for you," but if she is alive and kicking, shame on Pappy for having traded in his older model for a newer one.

DEAR ABBY: Who wouldn't live at home for $75 a month if Mom and Dad are dummies enough to offer it? The kid (correction — at 21, he's a man) is getting a real bargain.

The real question is: "Do Mom and Dad love him enough to push him out of the nest now that he is self-supporting?" And does he love them enough to take care of himself and ease their burden with the other five? Whether they can afford it or not, they are doing him a disservice to let him stay.

The other kids should know that loving isn't necessarily giving. It is strong stuff when you love enough to say, "GO!"

PUZZLED IN DENVER

DEAR ABBY: I am writing about that girl who found out when she was 16 that her parents had been married six months before she was born. She said they were the greatest, and she didn't hold anything against them.

I am 14, and I want that girl to know that I was born four days AFTER my parents were married, and I've known about it for three years because my mother told me, and I respect her even more for being honest.

You should never look down on a person because she made a mistake. A friend of mine was born illegitimate and she knew it, but she never held it against her mother until her mother denied it.

Lying is stupid. The truth always has a way of coming out.

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST

(c) 1973 Emily Post Institute, Inc.

The following letter has been chosen as the prize-winning one for this week. A copy of Emily Post's Etiquette had been sent to Mrs. Wittges of Sunnyvale, California.

Dear Mrs. Post: Recently you printed a letter in which the writer spoke of planning an open house to celebrate "her" silver anniversary. To me it was a clear example of the graceless use of the personal pronoun by many wives who refer to "my home" and "my children." Without her husband she'd not have an anniversary to celebrate.

I feel quite strongly that we do our husbands a disservice in not using "our" for mutually shared occasions, relatives (children and grandchildren) and possessions. To be sure, each may correctly refer to his or her parents, aunts, uncles, cousins, etc., and also children by a previous marriage as "my." But I do believe that a cornerstone of a good marriage is to use "our" as a small courtesy and expression of appreciation for our mates. Don't you?

—Martha Wittges
Dear Mrs. Wittges: Bravo! And this applies to husbands as well as wives. I have nothing to add, except a word of tolerance for newlyweds. It is hard to adjust from being an "I" to being a "we" and sometimes takes a little time. Thoughtful parents, who notice their newly married children doing this, should tactfully point it out to them.

Dear Mrs. Post: Recently, the pastors of our church were transferred. We sent each one a personal check as a "love offering," which is our custom for those who wish to contribute. The checks were cancelled because they were cancelled. In the past few weeks we have visited both ministers in their respective new churches. Not at any time have we received a written or verbal "thank you." We feel some acknowledgement was in order. Are we correct?

Mrs. R.
Dear Mrs. R.: You are, appreciation should be, if it is not, included as one of the Christian virtues, and the ministers and their wives should be ashamed of themselves for not expressing theirs.

For suggestions about to whom, when, how and what to give, you will find my booklet "Gifts and Giving" most helpful. To get a copy, send thirty-five cents in coins to cover booklet and mailing expenses, to Elizabeth L. Post, in care of The Daily Freeman.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices opened slightly lower again today, extending their decline into a fifth consecutive day.

Declining issues led advances on the New York Stock Exchange by a small margin.

Analysts said concern over the situation in the Midwest and Watergate were major factors in the softness, as well as worries over a possible economic downturn. The government recently reported a downturn in new factory orders for September.

Profit taking was another factor, brokers said, noting that despite the sharp declines of this week, the Dow Jones industrial average had risen some 133 points from its August lows to its highs of last Friday.

On Thursday, the Dow fell 7.75 to 948.83, bringing the indicator's decline so far this week to over 38 points.

Brokers attributed the weakness to the same factors: Midwest, Watergate and profit taking.

City Administration Rapped

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON In a sharply critical attack on the Koenig Administration, four members of Friends of Historic Kingston today charged that the city has ignored several of its most important landmarks and has neglected to take substantive steps to insure their preservation.

Attending a press conference at the Gov. Clinton Hotel were E. Robert Johnson, George Hutton, Edwin Ford and Dr. Charles Galyon. Their frustrations evident, each scored the city on several points concerning historic landmarks, but asked that any comments be attributed to the group as a whole, rather than any individual members. Mayor Francis R. Koenig was invited to attend today's press conference, but it was reported that a "last-minute scheduling change" forced the mayor to cancel his appearance.

Undaunted, the group lashed out in particular at the mayor's posture regarding the old City Hall. Terming the building "a useful facility in a city that does need space," the group charged that Koenig has created an aura of "passive discouragement in any use of the building." They also suggested that Koenig and the city administration has definite reasons for dissuading any use of the now-empty city hall building. "They represented it as a useless building so they could build a new city hall," it was stated. "They might look bad if someone turns around and puts the building to good use."

Koenig was also criticized for, according to the group, neglecting to appoint a committee that would be responsible for finding some viable use for the old building. "There was a statement made by the mayor and Alderman (Donald E.) Quick that the city's historic groups had failed to find a use for the building," said one of the members, "but none of these groups were ever empowered by the city to act as an agent for the city in finding a use for the building. That's very important. We've almost been acting as individuals, with no authority, in attempting to find someone interested in City Hall."

"We're still waiting for the mayor to appoint that commission," it was added.

They also charged that Housing and Urban Development funds were made available in February of 1972 for the complete renovation of the building. They said the June deadline for applying for the money — between $100,000 and $400,000 on a matching federal local basis — passed without any

Unemployment Rate Takes Sharp Drop

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate took a sharp and surprising downward turn last month, falling to 4.5 per cent of the work force, the lowest jobless rate since March 1970, the government said today.

The unemployment rate matched the predictions of the Nixon administration, which had forecast earlier this year the jobless rate would drop to 4.5 per cent by the end of the year. The unemployment rate had remained stuck at 4.8 per cent since June.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said the big decline was posted because employment was extremely strong in October, rising by 570,000 to a total 85.7 million on a seasonally adjusted basis.

It was the second straight month that the number of people with jobs had risen, indicating that the nation's economy is perhaps much stronger than even government economists have been saying.

Casals Program

A memorial program for Pablo Casals will be presented by the Phoenix Library Music Group Wednesday, Nov. 7, at 8 p.m. Included will be a documentary of Casals' life in his own words along with rare recordings of Casals as both cellist and conductor. The program will be held at the Carle home in Mount Tremper.

Smith, Paul Reunite As Yanks Reorganize

NEW YORK (AP) — Thirteen years ago, Tal Smith walked into the office of Gabe Paul, who was then vice president and general manager of the Cincinnati Reds.

"He said he wanted to get into baseball," recalled Paul. "I asked if he could take shorthand and he said he couldn't. I told him he ought to learn and that if he could, we might have a place for him."

Three months later, Smith returned. "I can take shorthand now," he announced.

Impressed with the young man's determination, Paul hired him as secretary for the Reds' farm department. "He was not a high priced man," said Paul.

"I got $350 a month after some haggling," said Smith. Thursday, Paul hired Smith again, this time as executive vice president of the New York Yankees in a front office reorganization. The price this time? "He's in the higher echelon of baseball executives now," said Paul, smiling.

Smith, 40, replaces General Manager Lee MacPhail in the Yankee hierarchy. But he did not inherit the GM title that MacPhail carried before being chosen the new American League President. "That's the nomenclature," said Paul. "It's what you call somebody."

From now on, Paul, who had been called an administrative partner in the Yankee superstructure, will be called president. The No. 1 man remains George M. Steinbrenner III, who's still called general partner. Smith was listed third in the chain of command.

Paul said the Yankees would operate without a general manager. "That is an outmoded designation," he said. Administrative responsibilities will be divided and Smith will carry a good share in that division. "Titles don't mean anything," Paul continued. "We have a big job to do here and we're most fortunate to get Tal. His background is tremendous."

That background includes the last 13 years with the Houston Astros organization in a number of varied functions, most recently as vice president and director of operations for the Astrodome-Astros Stadium Corp.

"I'm delighted to be joining the Yankees," said Smith. "This team has some talented athletes and is making strides. It's an exciting opportunity for me."

Gehrig Award To Ron Santo

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI) — Ron Santo, veteran third baseman of the Chicago Cubs, has been named winner of the 1973 Lou Gehrig Memorial Award. Ritter Collett, sports editor of the Dayton Journal Herald and chairman of the award selection committee, announced Thursday.

The award is given by Phi Delta Theta, national collegiate fraternity, in memory of the New York Yankee Hall of Fame first baseman.

Santo has been a mainstay in the Chicago lineup since coming up from the minors midway in the 1960 season. He has been the starting third baseman since joining the team. Santo won baseball's "Golden Glove" award as the top defensive player at his position five consecutive seasons and has been on the National League All-Star team nine times.

The 19th Gehrig award winner, Santo follows Wes Parker, the retired Los Angeles Dodger first baseman who won in 1972.

The selection is made by a committee which votes for the major league player best exemplifying the ability and character of Gehrig.

Former winners among active players in the majors include Pete Rose, Al Kaline, Harmon Killebrew and Brooks Robinson.

By IRA FUSFELD

KINGSTON — As the burners of the hot stove league get warmer and warmer during the winter months ahead, we all will look back on the Mets' amazing pennant drive, the playoffs, and then the World Series and come away with the one or two special moments from what turned out to be a very exciting baseball season.

For some it will be the crucial series with the Pirates. Still others will remember the superlative pitching of Jon Matlack. Maybe it will be the hitting and fielding heroics of Rusty Staub. Or perhaps the last hurrah of Willie Mays will make you smile inside.

But for many, maybe more than the Mets and the rest of the baseball establishment would like, thoughts will always return to that afternoon during the playoffs in Shea Stadium when television cameras showed what looked like a routine double play end in a wild skirmish at second base between the Mets' Bud Harrelson and the Reds' Pete Rose.

Ah yes, the Harrelson-Rose fight and the resulting melee of players which created a near riot when fans threw things at Rose in left field and Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson pulled his club off diamond until a "peace party" composed of Yogi Berra, Staub, Mays, Tom Seaver, and Cleon Jones walked out to calm the hostile gathering down. That's what thousands upon thousands of baseball fans will be talking about for years.

Harrelson was in town Thursday to take part in Mammoth Mall's grand opening and he was asked what effect the Rose incident would have on the sacred image of baseball.

"The biggest thing in my mind was my image with kids and the fact that I tried to get into a fight," remarked the slick-fielding shortstop for the National League champions. "But I also think that the image that I have also means that you have to stand up for your rights."

"I didn't like what had happened," he continued. "I've been hurt quite a bit at second base and never complained, but I thought what Pete did was uncalled for. He doesn't realize to this day what he did."

"I just turned around and let him know I didn't like it," Harrelson related. "He didn't like what I said and instead of saying something later and ironing it all out later, we more or less got into it out there and it reached a point where you know everyone was kind of uptight, everyone piled out on the field."

The reaction of the Shea Stadium fans nearly overshadowed the incident that touched them off. Harrelson thinks if it had happened during the regular season there wouldn't have been any reaction at all.

"The only reason people were even vaguely interested in that incident was because of the severity of the playoffs. It meant a lot to both clubs and it gives the writers something different to write about other than just the playoffs."

"I didn't like some of the things that happened," he went on. "I don't need any help whether I get beat up or not. I don't need any help from someone to answer for me or retaliate for me. I didn't like that part."

Neither did Harrelson care for a proposed public apology between he and Rose the day after the fight.

"People tried to build it up, the press and even our own ballclub, because they were afraid there was going to be a riot the next day," he said.

"I told them I wasn't going on any TV program and apologize. I thought the apology would be between Pete and myself. We had enough trouble trying to win the games. I wasn't worried about what people were going to say. I was more worried about cars!"

"I think the biggest problem off. We don't need that and I rule, he's anxious to see the Mets let these fans down by knocking them off. The Mets are going to come out on the field. The rowdies are going to be there. But if you let people know it's not right to do it and that it's not tradition to come out and tear up the field it won't happen. They let it happen in '69. People think it's tradition. It's not tradition, it's fighting for your life. I came off that field after the playoffs and I thought I was fighting for my life. A kid was chasing me and I straight-armed him and I sidestepped him. I was happy to win the game, but I was also happy to get in the clubhouse alive. Some price is too high. However, with a fighter as well as a lover.

Finley Releases Andrews

OAKLAND (UPI) — Mike Andrews is gone from the world champion Oakland A's today, and maybe from all of baseball, too, but he won't be soon forgotten.

The journeyman second baseman became the storm center of the 1973 World Series between the A's and New York Mets when he made a couple of crucial errors in the second game and summarily was "fired" by A's owner Charlie Finley.

Andrews came back to play again in the World Series—making three pinch-hitting appearances—but only because Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn stepped in and reinstated him over Finley's objection.

But Finley, who usually gets his way, got the last shot in Thursday when, after placing Andrews on the waiver list, he cut him loose. Andrews, who has played in the majors since the tail end of the 1966 season, could have been claimed by any of the other 23 big league clubs for $1. When the waiver period expired at noon Thursday, he drew his unconditional release.

It was over his future that Andrews agreed to go along with Finley and sign a paper stating he was physically unable to play.

Finley sought to have An-draws declared unavailable for the last five games of the World Series on physical grounds and have his place taken on the 25-man Oakland roster by infielder Manny Trillo.

However, Kuhn didn't accept Finley's proposal and reinstated Andrews. Later, the Commissioner fined Finley $5,000 over the incident.

"I was worried about my future in baseball," Andrews said at the time. "That's why I agreed to go along with Finley. But I realize now I was doing the wrong thing and I'm embarrassed about the whole situation."

Later Andrews, who was picked up from the White Sox as a free agent on July 31, said

Power Shifts In Pro Hockey

By United Press International

From one end of the rink to the other, the puck has been skidding in some strange directions in the National Hockey League.

Although the season is less than a month old, there have been some definite signs that the power structure is shifting from the old guard to some of the newer clubs. How else do you explain such phenomena as the New York Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks struggling along in the second division of their respective divisions?

Court Allows Handicapped Griddler to Play

DETROIT (AP) — A high school football player barred from competing because he wears an artificial leg won a court decision Thursday that will allow him to play at least one more game.

Ron Suenmick, 17, played six games at tackle for New Boston High this year before a school official discovered he wore the limb. He was ruled ineligible before New Boston's game last week under a Michigan High School Association rule barring players with artificial limbs.

However, U. S. Dist. Court Judge Lawrence Gubow issued a restraining order Thursday prohibiting enforcement of the rule until a hearing on the rule is held next week.

Suenmick and the board of education filed the suit, which claims the high school association rule denies him and others who wear artificial limbs of their rights.

Suenmick will thus get the chance to play at least once more since New Boston plays Grosse Ile on Saturday.

Kim's Song Takes Title

NEW YORK (UPI)—Kim's Song, a 4-year-old chestnut of Hill'n Dale farm in Illinois was crowned amateur-owner hunter champion at the National Horse Show Thursday night.

It was the second victory for Kim's Song. Last week in Washington, she was crowned grand hunter champion at the Washington horse show.

Kim's Song edged out Polk County, an 8-year-old gelding from Connecticut, by only a point.

In other competition Thursday night, Royal Fortune, a 7-year-old chestnut gelding, won competition for five-gated stallions or geldings with amateurs riding. Royal Fortune is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lyda of Brockton, Mass. Virginia Cable's Rhythm in the Night from Lexington, Kentucky was second.

In the three-gated event, Gala Affair, a 6-year-old chestnut mare from Delaware, Ohio, won first place, followed by Diana's Decision of Scottsdale, Arizona.

Staten Island Booters Upset Undeclared UCCC, 2-1

NEW PALTZ George Vizvarys' dream of an undefeated Ulster County Community College soccer season ended here Thursday in an early setting of rain, sun, heavy clouds, rainbows, and unbelievably strong winds.

The Halloween goblins hung around a little bit too long for Vizvary and his Senators as they suffered a 2-1 defeat at the hands of Staten Island Community College, a team also striving for an unbeaten year and one which was determined to open some eyes by knocking off the No. 1 junior college team in the country.

"They were better than us today," Vizvary said, trying to smile, but obviously pained at the thought of defeat after twelve straight victories and a quick rise up the ladder to the top of the NJCAA soccer poll.

"Apparently we are not as good as we think we are," he said. "The rankings came at a bad time. The boys got a little conceited. They thought they could walk on water."

The Senators found out the hard way. They took a 1-0 lead at 12:15 of the first half on a goal by Kurt Nedrick with an assist from Byron Cordero. Then it was all downhill.

Enrique Rivadulla tied the score for Staten Island at 16:13, then he sent a pass to Manuel Gonzalez at 20:55 for the go-ahead tally. Ulster could never recover.

Oh, the Senators tried to even the game. They swarmed around Staten Island goalie Jose Martinez several times before the first half ended and again a handful of times in the second half, but never was UCCC able to mount a sufficiently dangerous sustained attack.

The weather, a definite factor in the game as the fierce winds that swept across the wide open field and the rain came down to make things that much more unpleasant, hurt Ulster. But it hurt Staten Island too. It couldn't be used as an excuse.

"We made many human mistakes," Vizvary sighed. "Let's hope we can correct them in time for our next game."

The loss was not the end of the world for Ulster. The Senators may well fall out of the No. 1 spot as a result, but they can make up for that if they qualify for the Nationals in Miami next month.

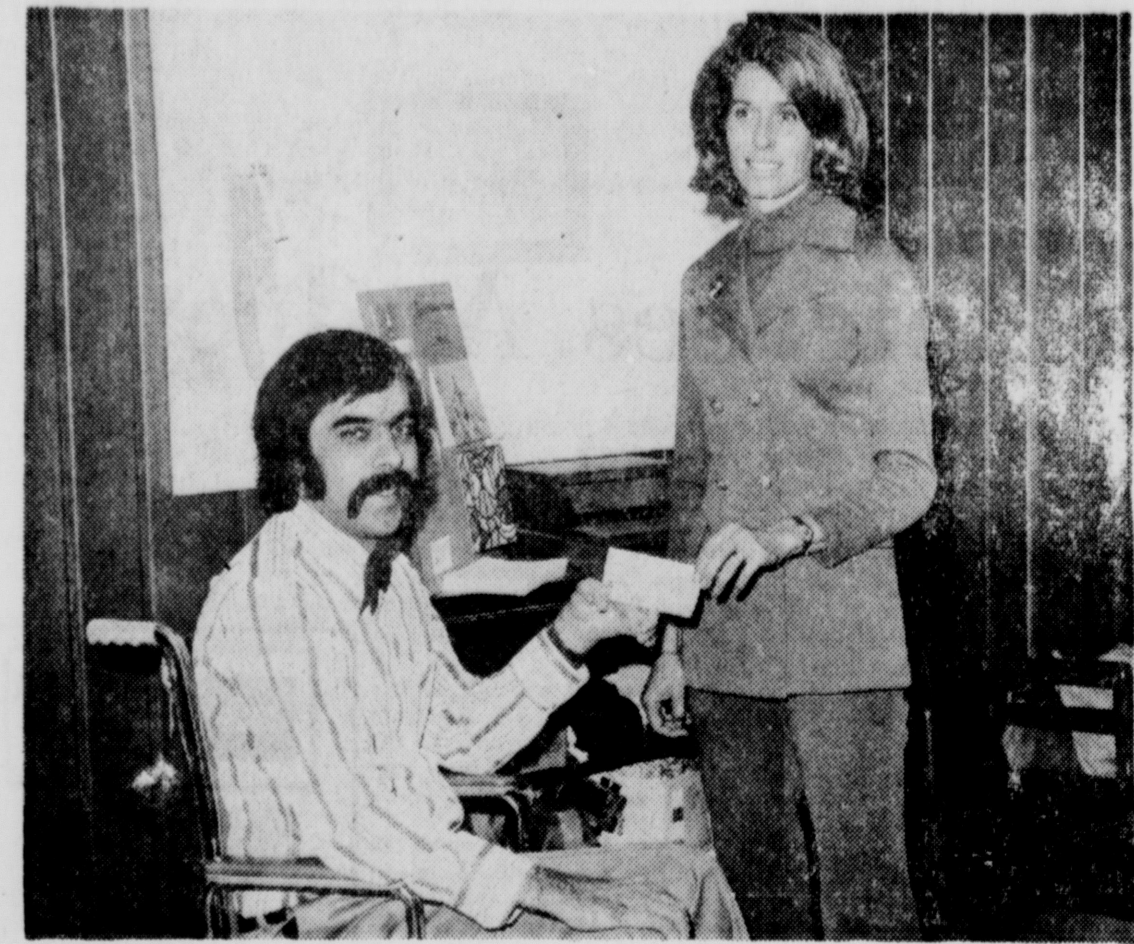

On the bright side, however, is the fact that they already have clinched the Mid-Hudson Conference title and they have Saturday's game here against Bronx as a final tuneup for the Regionals.

And if Ulster can win the Regionals and go on to Miami, they'll have plenty of time to make everyone forget about this one disappointing defeat.

THROW INS — The game was played on the "main" soccer field rather than on the secondary field the Senators had been using. But Saturday's game will likely be played on the secondary field since New Palitz State also has a home game and will obviously get first choice. . . . Shots on goals were even at 11 each as were corner kicks even at five apiece. Martinez made six stops for Staten Island before being ejected for calling one of the officials something not to his liking. Marc Charpentier stopped four shots in the UCCC cage. . . . The Unsung Heroine Award has to go to the UCCC cheerleading squad which stood behind the bench cheering wildly to the almost nonexistent crowd through horrible conditions.

Crenshaw Holds Lead

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Ben Crenshaw, the most highly-touted rookie since Jack Nicklaus hit the pro golf tour, held the lead but wasn't yet ready to start counting the winners' purse in the $125,000 Texas Open.

"It's a good start," the husky 21-year-old said Thursday after his blazing, six-under-par 65 gave him a one-stroke margin after one round of the chase for a $25,000 first prize.

"It's good to start with such a good round. I feel pretty confident. But there's three more rounds to play. That's a long way to go," he said.

"I'm not even going to start thinking about winning yet."

Crenshaw, a three-time national collegiate champion from the University of Texas, was making his first start since gaining his approved player's card as a full-fledged member of the pro tour.

Crenshaw ran in a monster putt—some 60 or 70 feet—for a share of the lead on the 17th hole then wedged to six feet and made the putt for a closing birdie that gave him the lead alone.

Bruce Fleisher, a former national amateur champion, and old pro Pete Brown, one of the few blacks on the tour, shared second with 66s.

Charles Coody, a former Masters champion and two-time winner in Great Britain this year, was alone with a 67 in the warm, mildly windy weather on the 6,990 yard, par 71 Woodlake Golf Club course.

Most of the game's great names—Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Lee Trevino, Tom Weiskopf—skipped this tournament, but the personable, hard-hitting Crenshaw filled the void very nicely.

Broad smiles broke across the faces of officials of the sponsoring San Antonio Golf Association when he birdied his last two holes and came in the leader just as darkness began to gather.

"The absolute best thing that could have happened to our tournament," they said.

Crenshaw, who challenged for the lead and finished a sixth in the 1973 Houston Open while still an amateur, didn't have a bogey and missed only two greens in his strong effort.

"It was a very good round," the blond, long-haired young man said. "I've played good rounds before, but any time you get through 18 holes without making a bogey—no matter how many birdies you have—it's a good round."

UCCC Cagers in Debut

STONE RIDGE the 1973-74 cagers before the Ulster County Community College basketball team will play an inter-squad game on Wednesday, Nov. 7, on the Stone Ridge campus which is open to the entire college community and the general public without charge. Coach Jerry Moss announced today.

The game, to start at 7:30 o'clock, will be played in the Senate Gymnasium.

Coach Moss says he feels this game will be ideal to give the college students, faculty and staff as well as the general public an opportunity to preview the returning lettermen on the Senators this season include like Chestnut, Steve Richardson, Dave Smith, Lenoris Clemons, and Nelson Marcelle.

Coach Moss says the standout freshmen on the squad include Carl Mabry, Phil Stewart, Chris Cummings, Tim Terbusch, Mike Dunn, Gary Meyers, Fletcher Abrams, John Funk, Kevin Clark, and Lloyd Abraham, one of UCCC top guards who will not play due to a fractured ankle. He will be in full action around mid December.

SAA Basketball League Fastest in Many Years

SAUGERTIES The Saugerties Athletic Association basketball league has abandoned its plans for expansion but the six-team circuit that opens its 1973-74 season on Nov. 17 is the strongest in the history of the organization. And not a few basketball observers rate it the best in the mid-Hudson area.

Hudson Valley Tire entry dropped from the league, but Frank Allen and Rod Chando, who were teammates last season, have taken over separate teams. Allen remains with the Capri 400 team while Chando will direct the Handle Bars, the high scoring Kingston YMCA league entry.

Acker's Raiders have switched backers and will be sponsored by Edgar's, with Jerry Hawkins as captain. Jack Naccarato will handle Naccarato's Insurance. Bill Robinson captains Boo's Tavern and Cal Fowx takes over the Annandale Hotel squad.

In the opening tripleheader, Boo's Tavern meets Naccarato Insurance at 1 p.m.; Annandale Hotel plays Edgar's at 2:20 p.m. and The Handlebar takes on Capri 400 at 3:40 p.m. The schedule format is the same as last season, with a 15-game pennant race followed by a playoff involving the top four finishers in the regular season standings.

Several significant personnel changes have taken place since last season. Hawkins has lost such standouts as Warren Gritmon, Don Meier, Larry Marcus and Ron Thomas to other teams. But he will bring the fabled Jumpin' Joe Uhl into league competition for the first time.

Frank Allen has a rebuilding job on his hands, as will the Annandale quintet which lost Dave Kane and Dave Whittaker. Boo's have signed Gritmon, Meier, Kane and Whittaker and may also reactivate Joe Evans. The Handlebar will add to the 1973 championship teams such talents as A.J. Murphy and Ron Thomas, while Naccarato's have lured Larry Marcus into the fold. Undoubtedly, such ex-Hudson Valley Tire hoopers as John Kelly, Craig Burkhardt, be picked up by other squads.

Coleman Annexes Soccer Title

NEW PALTZ It was supposed to go down to the last day. Coleman High School's soccer team had to play Fallsburgh today before it could clinch the Ulster County Athletic League championship. Then a funny thing happened: Fallsburgh was beaten by New Palitz, 2-1, here Thursday and now today's game doesn't mean a thing to the Statesmen are champions.

"This was the game of the season for us," exclaimed New Palitz Coach Gene Ventriglia after his team had eliminated the Comets from the race and allowed Coleman to wrap up the title while it was beating Rondout, 2-0.

"The kids really played a great game."

In the other game Thursday, Onteora blanked Pine Bush, 2-0.

The Huges spotted Fallsburgh a first period goal by Norris Gilmore at 5:23. Then they closed the door.

Birch Taylor tied it at 5:30 of the third period to get the momentum rolling. Some six minutes later at 11:28, Fred Babino blasted one home and New Palitz had the lead.

Fallsburgh tried to get rough after that and two of its players were ejected. With darkness settling over the wind-swept field the Huges held on and won the game, thus clinching third place.

"It was a physical game," Ventriglia commented. "The wind may have hurt them more than us because they are a kick and run team. But our boys were great."

New Palitz outshot Fallsburgh 16-9. Huges goalie Mark Robert made five saves to the 13 minutes later at 11:28, Fred Babino blasted one home and New Palitz had the lead.

The principal recipients of New Palitz' victory, the now champion Coleman team, got a pair of goals from Ronnie Weber and shutout goaltending from Sean Roche and Joel Sickler to capture what they thought would be a final tune-up before today's encounter with Fallsburgh.

Weber's first goal came at 7:00 of the second period on a penalty kick. His other tally came at 15:30 on an assist from Vinnie Schell.

The Statesmen took 13 shots at RVC goalie Ernie Cesana. Rondout had six shots at the Coleman goaltending duo.

What is left for Coleman today is the preservation of its unbeaten league record, and the knowledge that it too can beat Fallsburgh, just as it did earlier in the season.

Rondout finished up with a fourth place 4-6 record. Onteora won its third game in nine outings by shutting out winless last place Pine Bush. Jim Stoothoff and Norm Bittschmann were the goalscorers and Bob Bedell was the faultless goalie.

The Indians play New Palitz at home today in the other UCCAL finale.

Bears Picked Over Packers

By BEN THOMAS Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP) — The oldest rivalry in the National Football League resumes this Sunday when the Chicago Bears and the Green Bay Packers play for the 100th time.

There have been bloody battles galore in this historic series and the Bears hold a 55-47-6 edge over-all.

Last week's dismal picking was seven right, five wrong and one tie. That made the season percentage .674 for 58-28-5.

BEARS 20, PACKERS 17
Chicago (2-5) at Green Bay (2-3-2) — Green Bay is favored by a touchdown. Since 1966 a trend has developed with Chicago losing four, winning one, losing four, winning one and losing four.

VIKINGS 28, BROWNS 17
Cleveland (4-2-1) at Minnesota (7-0) — The Vikings have to lose sometime, but not this time.

RAMS 24, FALCONS 21
Los Angeles (6-1) at Atlanta (4-3) — Los Angeles wasn't supposed to go as far as it has. After losing to Minnesota last week, this will be a good test of Chuck Knox's coaching ability at quarterback.

SAINTS 28, BILLS 23
Buffalo (5-2) at New Orleans (3-4) — Who would have ever thought a couple of weeks ago that the Saints would be rated "pick em" by the oddsmakers. So, let's pick.

DOLPHINS 31, JETS 17
Miami (6-1) at New York Jets (2-5) — Miami is a heavy favorite, as usual, and the Jets are still without Joe Namath.

COWBOYS 28, BENGALS 20
Cincinnati (4-3) at Dallas (4-3) — The Cowboys have never lost to an American Football Conference team in regular season play and the oddsmakers may know something.

CHIEFS 24, CHARGERS 13
Kansas City (3-3-1) at San Diego (1-5-1) — The lowly Chargers tied heavily favored Cleveland last week. Does that mean they're ready to upset Kansas City, which is favored by a mere six points. Don't bet on it.

RAIDERS 25, GIANTS 17
New York Giants (1-5-1) at Oakland (4-2-1) — Ken Stabler appears to be coming into his own as Oakland quarterback. The Giants, meanwhile, didn't do any better by changing from Norm Snead to Randy Johnson what they were supposed to last week and won. Is it asking too much for a repeat? The oddsmakers like the Lions, so why argue.

OILERS 21, COLTS 17
Houston (0-7) at Baltimore (2-5) — This could be the only half-decent chance that the Oilers have to win this season.

REDSKINS 23, STEELERS 21
Pittsburgh (5-2) at Pittsburgh (6-1) — Pittsburgh is favored by a mere one-point Monday nights and Terry Bradshaw is hurt. Besides, it's time for the Redskins offense to do (2-4-1) — Detroit finally did something right.

KHS and Highland Hoople's Choices

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE

HOOPLE MANOR
Egad, friends, we are getting close to the end of the scholastic football season, are we not? Be that as it may, several engagements are certainly worth your attention this week as are, of course, my faultless forecasts of same.

By the by, my computers have already begun to receive data on next week's Saugerties-Kingston game so that it may be just a bit more accurate — heh-heh — than it was last year when what must have been a short circuit resulted in such a foolish pick.

As for now, let us switch our attention to the present. It's on to this week's picks:

KINGSTON 30, POUGHKEEPSIE 0

Poor Poughkeepsie. It's just not in the stars for them this season and it's certainly not in the universe this week. Kingston has a way with weak teams. It makes them look just terrible. I'm afraid Poughkeepsie will suffer dearly at the hands of the Maroons.

HIGHLAND 12, PINE BUSH 6

This has all the earmarks of a game quite similar to last week's Highland-Walkill tilt. The difference is Pine Bush's defense, apparently not quite as strong as is Highland's. I would, of course, hope that Highland will have a better day than it has had the last two Saturdays. After all, are two defeats any impressive. I still can't quite figure out how the Hugies are picking up so much yardage and so few points, but they won't really need too many this week.

RED HOOK 21, MARLBORO 6

A rather dismal season, to say the least, for Marlboro so far, and it doesn't figure to get any better against Red Hook which seems to have reached its peak. This game is a tune-up really, Red Hook can't wait to get at Ellenville, and Marlboro sees relief from Boiceville a week away.

How about college football, you ask? Well, there's a colossal day-night doubleheader in Jackson, Mississippi featuring LSU vs. Mississippi in the daylight encounter and Alabama vs. Mississippi State under the mazdas — heh-heh.

In a pair of well-played games I pick LSU, 14-12, and Alabama, 29-8.

The Hoople Indicators also see Southern Cal beating California, 26-13; Ohio State over Illinois, 37-14; Penn State turning back Maryland, 38-26; and UCLA rolling over Washington, 47-14, har-rumph.

In other games it will be: Air Force 21, Army 6; Cornell 32, Columbia 7; Yale 26, Dartmouth 21; Missouri 23, Kansas State 12; Nebraska 21, Colorado 20; Notre Dame 49, Navy 7; Oklahoma 36, Iowa State 8; Pittsburgh 28, Syracuse 6; and Texas 32, SMU 18.

way to answer to a genius backing?

ELLENVILLE 28, RONDOUT 6

Get yourself the films of the Red Hook-Rondout game, make believe Ellenville is Red Hook, and you have yourself the complete unabridged action for this Saturday's game.

WALLKILL 24, LIBERTY 0

Liberty didn't do itself much of a favor by beating Onteora last week. Sure, the Redskins finally ended a potential winless season, but now Wallkill won't take them lightly this week and I'm afraid that was Liberty's only hope, kaff-kaff.

NEW PALTZ 14, ONTEORA 13

It's New Palz on the ground vs. Onteora in the air. The ground route has been more

Section 'I' Soccer

The Kingston High School soccer team will begin a quest for the Section I title this weekend seeded as the number four team in a Class A field of eight.

The Maroons, third in the DCSL this year with a 10-3-3 record, meet White Plains (8-5-0) Saturday at 2:30 p.m. at Arlington in one of four first round matchups. Winners will meet Tuesday in the semifinals, and the championship will be held on Saturday, Nov. 10.

The top-ranked DCSL champion Arlington Admirals, 14-2-0 for the year, will face 6-2-0 Yonkers at Dutchess Community College also on Saturday. In two 3 p.m. Friday battles, second-seeded Scarsdale (12-3-1) is at Rye Neck against Mt. Vernon (6-6-1), and third-seeded Stepinac (11-3-0) meets Mamaroneck (8-5-3) at Scarsdale.

Nineteen other schools will fight it out for the honors in the section's three other classes. Of the six teams in Class B, number one Ossining (14-0-1) and number two Fox Lane (11-3-

1) drew first round byes. Other games pit third-rated Harrison (8-2-2) versus Sleepy Hollow (8-7-1) and fourth-ranked Poughkeepsie (9-4-2) against Horace Greely (9-4-3).

No team from either Dutchess or Ulster County is among the five competitors in Class C, but in Class D, three of the eight teams are from the DCSL. Rhinebeck, unranked at 7-7-1, goes against top-seeded Croton (9-1-2) in a Friday game at the Arlington field. Webutuck, also unranked at 9-5-1, takes on second-seeded North Salem (11-3-1) Saturday at Bedford Hills.

In other Class D openers, Spackenkill (10-2-3), rated third, meets 8-6-2 Bronxville Saturday at Roosevelt's Hyde Park field, and fourth-seeded Rye Neck (10-4-1) plays Hastings (10-5-0) in a Friday matchup at the Kings College campus.

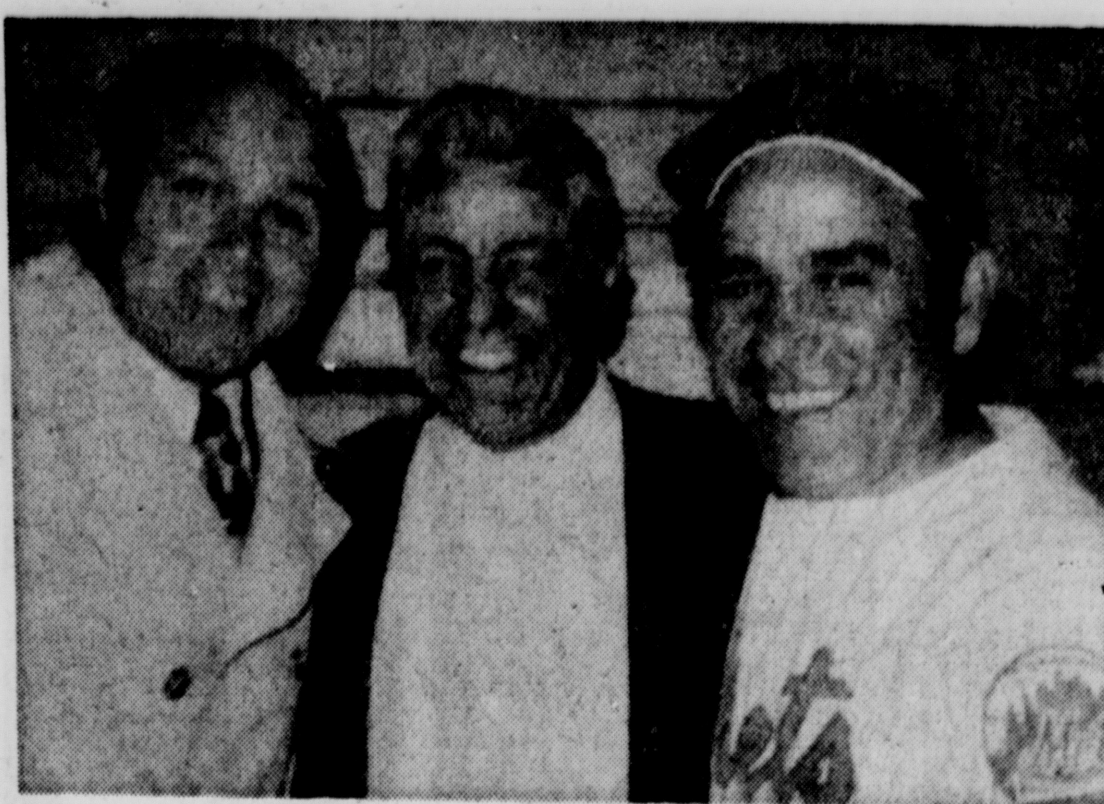

All Friday games start at 3 p.m., and all Saturday games go at 2:30. All four class championships will be played Nov. 10.

Five Beat Pro At Sawyerkill

SAUGERTIES Sawyerkill Country Club's final tournament of the season produced five winners who conquered Bud Cordore in a Beat-the-Pro tourney — with handicaps, of course.

Cordore, the Sawyerkill professional, fired a target score of 38, but Dexter Arnold, Bill Wolven, Al Peiponen, Bill LoDolce and Horace Emerick all did him at least one better.

Arnold, utilizing his 14 handicap, carded a 46 to lead the winners' parade with a net 32. Wolven and Peiponen had identical scores of 44-8, 36. LoDolce also netted 36 on a 47-11 combination, while Emerick just made the cut with a 47-10, 37.

LAUGHING BOYS — Fred Davi (C) general manager of the Kingston Braves greets two famed personalities in Mets dugout during World Series (L) Joe Garagiola and (R) Yogi Berra, Mets manager.

Q's Stop Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The expensively coached San Diego Conquistadors collected a victory at the expense of the Memphis Tams 103-100 Thursday night in an American Basketball Association match.

"We caused a few things to happen, mainly by sheer hustle, because the ball sure wasn't going in the basket," said Wilt Chamberlain, the $600,000-a-year Q's coach.

Ex-Policeman Appeal Rejected

GOSHEN, N.Y. (AP)—The appellate division of State Supreme Court rejected Thursday an appeal from a former Newburgh policeman convicted of burglary and related offenses.

David A. Birdsall, who is currently serving a term of up to six years in the Walkill Correctional Facility, was convicted earlier this year of second-degree burglary and third-degree grand larceny in the August 1971 looting of a Newburgh department store.

He was also found guilty of second-degree burglary and petty larceny in the March 1970 burglaries of a bar and a men's shop in Newburgh.

Birdsall was one of 16 Newburgh policemen originally charged in a burglary scandal, 14 of whom later pleaded guilty to reduced charges. The two others were found guilty in jury trials of burglary and related charges.

Skylab Rocket, Ship Set for Mock Firing

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — The Skylab 3 launch rocket and crew command ship were thoroughly tested and being loaded with fuel today for a mock firing that stood as the final hurdle for liftoff of the last space station crew Nov. 10.

Technicians were performing all of the tasks during the drill they will have to do on launch day, ending with the rehearsal blast off at 11:40 a.m. EST.

Astronauts Gerald P. Carr, a Marine lieutenant colonel, civilian scientist Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue, an Air Force lieutenant colonel, were winding up their 2½ years of training for the record-length space mission of at least 60 days.

Because of confidence in the ability of both crew and veteran launchpad workers, the astronauts remained at the Johnson Space Center in Houston and were not taking part in the rehearsal here.

The mighty Saturn IB rocket, standing 224 feet tall with the revamped Apollo lunar module for the crew atop it, was being pumped full of 193,000 gallons of liquid hydrogen, oxygen and kerosene propellant for the test. Workers also had to roll a huge skeleton-like mobile service structure used to work on the launch machine back to a parking site during the rehearsal.

Engineers and technicians worked all week testing the scores of vital systems of the rocket and crew ferry craft needed to send the pioneering astronauts on man's longest journey in space.

Carr, Gibson and Pogue have hundreds of scientific investigations planned for them using Skylab's unique arrays of earth and sun study instruments, and special devices to test how well man adapts to long periods of weightlessness.

Arrest 3 In 'Supermarket'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Detectives arrested three persons and confiscated an estimated $50,000 worth of cocaine in a raid on what was described as a "narcotics supermarket" in the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn Thursday night.

Sgt. George Zarogian of the Brooklyn North Narcotics Squad said nine other persons connected with the operation had been arrested earlier stemming from a 4½ month investigation.

The detective said the operation was centered in a social club which also functioned as a gambling center. He called it a "narcotics supermarket" where heroin, cocaine, and other illicit hard drugs were sold.

The club had an elaborate security set-up which included the issuance of membership cards and weapons searches on all persons entering, he said.

Arrested were: Fred Wintons, 28, Inez Smith, 33, and Bertha Hibbon, 38, all of Brooklyn.

File For Price Hikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two major auto makers, Chrysler and American Motors, have filed for their 1974 models. If approved by the Cost of Living Council, the increases would be the second round of auto price hikes this year.

The American Motors increase would average $114 per model and the Chrysler increase, $63.25 per model.

Unless the council blocks them, the price hikes for American Motors cars would take effect Nov. 30 and for Chrysler cars Dec. 1 under the mandatory 30-day waiting period of the Phase 4 anti-inflation program.

Neither Ford nor General Motors have filed for new price increases. All four major U.S. automakers were granted increases by the council Sept. 7 for 1974 models.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

EVERETTE HODGE

By CARL GRAHAM

Community Forum, an "independent political action group," was organized Thursday night and will meet again Dec. 13 to elect officers and set policies.

Approximately 50 persons met in St. Marks AME Zion Church Hall on Wurts Street to hear Everett Hodge, president of the Ulster County Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, describe the new organization's aims.

"We want to set up a political action group — not black or white — but independent from any political party," he said. "We taxpayers will have some input to the politicians. When we speak we will be heard."

Hodge said he realized it was too late to have any influence on the 1973 election, but called on the audience to join the group and make it a factor in 1974 and subsequent years.

William B. Merrill, Republican-Conservative candidate for mayor, and William C. Mullany, Democratic candidate for Family Court Judge, were present and spoke from the audience who objected that endorsed the idea of an independent political group, was challenged by Mullany.

"If you are supported by Republican money, how can you be an independent and still be a Republican?" Mullany asked.

Before Merrill could reply he was interrupted by a man in the audience who objected that the meeting was being turned into a political rally. Hodge then put a clamp on any further partisan political speeches.

On the other hand, County

Legislator Larry Kithcart was and discussion groups. Hodge replied that groups that depended on funding by politicians could not operate independently and stuck by his original concept of an independent group.

"We must be independent," he insisted. "We cannot tie ourselves to groups that are funded by government."

Hodge called the amounts of money being spent on political campaigning "ridiculous," and said he could take $1,000 and some good workers and elect officers to every office in the county." Hodge said that he had conferred with officials of the Kingston school district about more black teachers for the district's schools.

"This district has 650 teachers," he said. "Based on population, we should have 65. We have 11."

He said he was told that black teachers would not come to the community for the district's starting salary and said he had offered to help recruit black teachers for next year.

His remarks brought another objection from the audience that the meeting was wandering away from the printed agenda.

Hodge said that officers would be elected at Community Forum's meeting on Dec. 13 and that chairmen would be named for study groups on welfare, housing, education, recreation, employment, and politics.

New Paltz Students vs. Election Board

Another Court Challenge on Registration

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON Once again, a group of State University College at New Paltz students will go to court Monday to force the Ulster County Board of Elections to allow them to register to vote in New Paltz.

Charles Kriss, a student, has obtained a show cause order returnable before Supreme Court Justice Louis G. Bruhn at 9:30 a.m. in the Ulster County Court House. He will be represented by the New Paltz law firm of Peters and Weiner.

Another group of 16 students will also be in court for the same purpose, in effect asking the court to allow them to register.

Tuesday Supreme Court Justice George S. Cobb ruled that the Ulster County Board of Elections did not act unconstitutionally or unreasonably in denying New Paltz students registration for election in the Nov. 6 election.

Justice Cobb did however allow six of 16 students making application to register, the right to do so, judging each case on its own merits. The 16 were among 42 who originally filed affidavits stating that they had been denied the right to register. Of the 42, only 16 reportedly turned up to register when the Board of Elections provided special and extra hours for them to register, and then later challenged their registrations.

The students, who will appear in court Monday, were not among (with the exception of one) the 42 who originally protested their denial of the right to register.

The Board of Elections has steadfastly maintained that the majority of students legal addresses are those of their parents, that they receive their main support from their parents and that New Paltz is a temporary home.

The students, on the other hand have maintained that they do not intend to return to the home of their parents and consider New Paltz "home."

The 16 students who will ask Judge Bruhn's permission to register in New Paltz include Richard Bengloff, Bill Persky, Robert Cataland, Stephen Damon, Ronald Spears, Peter Yellin, Kathleen Harty, Janet Schwartz, Michael Freiser, William Merrick, David Rosen, Pamela Nilson, Gayle Brill, Larry Rubin, Jean Emerich, Mary Lynn Peluso.

In Judge Cobb's decision earlier this week, allowing six of 16 students to register, it was pointed out that all six lived off-campus, although Judge Cobb did not allow all off-campus students to register to vote in New Paltz. He apparently took into consideration the circumstances surrounding and that they had signed college records indicating their addresses to be the same as their parents.

Monday's court case comes one day before the Nov. 6 election therefore it is expected that Judge Bruhn will rule immediately on the question.

Assistant County Attorney John J. Lynch pointed out that many of the students petitioning to register in New Paltz had changed the addresses on their driver's licenses a day or two before attempting to register

Program Is Rewarding

ELLENVILLE About $50,000 was earned by students in the Work Experience Program at the Ellenville Central School during the 1972-73 school year, according to a report given to Superintendent of Schools Thomas J. Hayden by Stanley Engelman, coordinator of the program.

The students worked some 25,000 hours, either during released time from school, after school, or on weekends, according to Engelman's report. The students are employed under the program at various locations within the district where they earn while they learn, at rates ranging from the federal minimum wage to $3.10 per hour.

The report stated that the business and industrial community in the Ellenville area has been most cooperative in the program. In the program, the student is supervised by his employer and by the Work Experience Program in Ellenville.

Engelman is responsible for checking the work of the students while on the job, in addition to conducting classes with the students themselves.

Hayden explained that the Work Experience Program is a cooperative program between the school and the local business and industrial community which enables students to gain experience in their career goal area and also earn money in order to stay in school, or possibly in order to continue their education after high school graduation.

The students receive school credit toward graduation requirements by attending regular classes and a work experience class plus working a minimum of 600 hours during the school year.

Hayden praised Engelman's work, and said Engelman had spearheaded the operation and secured enthusiastic support from the teachers in the school system.
